HINES APPEALS TO PATRIOTISM OF WAR HEROES

Urges That Demands on Government Be Restricted to Needy Vets

SEES DANGER IN BONUS

If Burden to U. S. Is Intolerable, Cause Will Be Impaired

Washington—(AP)—When who served in the World war were urged today by Veterans Administrator Hines that unless they show peace-time patriotism their demands for relief will place an "intolerable" burden on the government.

Addressing the annual Red Cross convention, Hines reviewed what had been done for former service men. Without referring to demands in the last congress for full payment of adjusted compensation certificates, or to the new law which permits World war veterans to borrow 50 per cent of a certificate's Hines said:

"It would seem to me further extensions merit study and deliberation. Veterans must manifest a peace-time patriotism in connection with future demands, comparable to that which brought them honor in the war. If the burden upon the government for their relief is not to become intolerable and reaction impair their cause.

"If we are to teach our young men as a matter of principle that service to our country means that the government thereafter must reward that service, irrespective of need, then we are undermining the very foundation of good citizenship."

Would Help Deserving

Hines said everyone is "proud of the fact that our government has been able to go so far in granting relief to our veterans, and the American people will make no complaint as to the cost of such relief provided these expenditures go to those who are deserving."

An "adequate" national relief policy, he asserted, should cover hospitalization, domiciliary care, employment preference, compensation for service-connected disabilities and allowances or pensions for permanent disabilities not attributable to military service.

His program would include no monetary assistance to men not incapacitated, but would embody relief for widows and children left by disabled veterans.

Hines said about $13,000,000,000 had been spent for veterans' relief measures since 1793, of which amount $5,000,000,000 has gone to World war service men. He added it was a safe prediction that by 1950 disbursements for veterans' relief will have reached $21,850,000,000—the cost of the World war.

Reject 44-Hour Week For Women

Repeal Dry Law, Appeal To President

NIXON BILL IS VOTED DOWN BY HOUSE, 65 TO 30

Washington—(AP)—More than 530 women, armed with a resolution calling for outright repeal of the eighteenth amendment, today waited personally upon President Hoover to ask him to take this action.

The White House offices were filled to overflowing, and a long line stretched into the courtyard, as members of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform waited to shake hands with the chief executive.

The organization's second annual convention a few minutes earlier had named Mrs. Courtlandt Nicoll of New York, their secretary, to present the unanimously adopted resolution. It concluded:

"We petition the president and the congress of the United States to take such action as will give to the people of the United States an opportunity to put into effect the principles to which we adhere."

Mrs. Nicoll, in presenting the resolution to President Hoover, said:

"At the second annual convention of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, comprising a membership of over 500,000 from every state, it was voted the copy of the resolution passed by the convention this morning be presented to you and to the congress. I, therefore, have the honor to present you with this resolution."

President Hoover smiled and said, "very glad to have you."

He shook hands with several hundred of the women.

Pledged to outright repeal the organization's resolution concluded with a resolve "that we petition the president and the congress of the United States to take such action as will give to the people of the states an opportunity to put into effect the principles to which we adhere."

Cite Reform Plans

"Insofar as the outstanding proposals for reform made during this year," the resolution to the president said, "are predicated upon this necessity of repeal, the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform is heartily in sympathy with them; that insofar as their substitute plans may leave the matter still in the hands of congress and therefore liable to be a football in successive political campaigns, it questions the finality of the relief they offer from the intolerable conditions born of the attempt at national prohibition."

Immediately following the organization declared its belief that only upon repeal of the amendment and a return to the states of the power to regulate liquor "can a lasting solution of this great problem be found."

Final Action by Senate Tomorrow on Fong Unemployment Bill

Madison—(AP)—The Nixon bill providing for an eight hour working day and a 44-hour week for women in industry was killed in the assembly today by a vote of 65 to 30. It was consideration of this measure which led to the longest call of the house of the present session last week. The bill contains an emergency clause for a nine hour day and 50-hour week.

Assemblyman E. G. Smith, Beloit, who termed himself "a white collar man who knows little about labor problems," and Assemblyman Agnes Charbonneau, Superior, led the house against the measure by pleading for the rights of women.

"I plead for the right of the woman with four or five children to provide for and with only two hands with which to do it," Smith said. "It is right to limit her working hours to 44 hours when she might work longer and better provide for her dependents."

Mrs. Charbonneau continued her plea that women be allowed to make enough for their support as long as they are able and willing to work. Assemblyman Arthur Hill, Alma, and Harold Groves, Madison, spoke in favor of the bill, pointing out that it would create more jobs and would lead ultimately to an eight hour day for all persons in industry.

Assemblymen Ben Rubin, Milwaukee, C. Earl Ingram, Eau Claire, and Oscar Schmeck, Appleton, took the floor to debate the merits of the measure. Rubin denounced the "Albuquerque open shop crowd," who appeared before the assembly committee on labor in opposition to the bill.

Following the vote, Assemblyman George O'Connor, Hancock, moved reconsideration at once but the motion failed 54 to 42, a two-thirds vote being required.

Fire Hits German Palace, Intended For U. S. Embassy

Part of American Commercial Attache's Records Are Destroyed

Berlin—(AP)—The famous Bluecher palace on Pariserplatz, which had been purchased by the American government for an embassy building here, was badly damaged by fire before dawn today.

The whole right wing of the three story building was ablaze before the arrival of firemen, who, despairing of saving the palace, concentrated their efforts on preventing spread of the blaze to nearby buildings. Additional alarms emptied other fire houses and almost every piece of apparatus in the city was called out.

Origin of the fire was not determined. There were no known casualties but the offices of the United States commercial attache, the only part of the embassy which had been moved to the building, were destroyed.

Title to the building was still in its former owner's hand so the United States government, which is reported to have paid $7,500,000 for it, presumably escaped serious loss. The palace was built by the Prussian government as a gift to General Bluecher, who turned the tide of battle at Waterloo.

Ambassador Sackett said that he probably would have to postpone his projected trip to America because of the fire. He could not determine immediately whether a new building would have to be erected or, in that case, how long America would have to wait for a new embassy.

Several persons who watched the fire said that at its outbreak it was accompanied by several explosions, presumably due to the ignition of hunter's ammunition belonging to one of the tenants, among whom was Prince Hohenkron of Donnersmark, whose apartment was completely destroyed.

The half-burned records of the American commercial attache's office could be picked up all over the famous Tiergarten this morning, a high wind having blown them out of the building while the firemen were attempting to quench the blaze.

The chief sufferers from the fire were the members of the Donnersmark family who lost costly tapestries, paintings, Venetian mirrors and antique furniture, collected through centuries.

Frau Edith von Maltzan, widow of the late ambassador to the United States, who was a guest in the palace, helped the Donnersmarks rescue two of their most valuable possessions, Lenbach's "Bismarck" and Kaulbach's "Count Guido Henckell of Donnersmark."

Crossed Wires or Workman's Carelessness Believed Responsible

Chicago—(AP)—Reports of crossed wires or carelessness on the part of a workman today were subjects of inquiry by Coroner Herman Bundesen, in his effort to find the cause of the sanitary district tunnel disaster which brought death to 11 men and serious injury to sixteen others.

The summoning of a constitutional court, or parliament, also is included, although the date was not specified.

The text of the government's manifesto says:

1. In order to show the democratic origin of its power and in view of the responsibility in which all organs of the state submit its collective and individual acts to the sanction of a constitutional court—the supreme and direct organ of the national will, and when the hour arrives the government will turn over to the courts its powers.

2. To respond to the just and unsatisfied desires of Spain, the provisional government resolves immediately to submit to a purifying examination in defense of public welfare and interests and the judgments, responsibilities, acts, operations of authority which were left pending by the parliament dissolved in 1923, and other previous parliaments; open a means of revision in official organizations whether civil or military in order that all departments of government will be free from pre-judicial and arbitrary judgments which were habitual in the regime just ended.

For Religious Freedom

3. The provisional government makes public its decision to respect fully the individual conscience, liberty of cults and creeds, the state not being authorized at any moment to ask its citizens what their personal religious belief may be.

"The provisional government will orientate its activities not only in respect of personal liberty as guaranteed by our constitution concerning the rights of men, but it will also endeavor to enlarge such liberties and rights adopting guarantees of protection for these rights, one of which is the modern principle of law, that of personal and collective association on the basis of all social rights."

5. The provisional government declares that private property is guaranteed by law and in consequence it will not be appropriated unless there is cause for public utility and with previous proper indemnity. The government is constant of the absolute neglect in which the farming masses have been left, the little interest shown in the agrarian economy of the country and the incongruity of the law pertaining to such, with modern principles of legislation, and it therefore adopts as a standard the recognition of agrarian rights which should respond to the social function of all land.

6. The provisional government in view of the reasons justifying the fullness of its newly born republic to those from strong secular position and taking advantage of their means, may render difficult its consolidation and therefore the provisional government may subordinate their rights.

As to the regime of the finances of the government, a detailed account will be given to the constitutional cortes.

HOOPER EXPECTED TO REMAIN AT CAPITAL

Washington—(AP)—President Hoover probably will spend his entire summer in Washington, keeping his weekends free of engagements, however, for trips to his Rapidan fishing camp.

In making this announcement at the White House today, officials said present indications were that Mr. Hoover would not take his proposed trip through the national parks and that he had no intention of establishing a summer-white house at his home at Palo Alto, Calif.

He will go to Marion, Ohio, to dedicate the Harding memorial on June 15. He will also make an address before the Republican Editorial association at Indianapolis and on dedicating the Lincoln tomb at Springfield, Ill., on the same trip. He plans to return to Washington after the Springfield speech.

EXPECT SHOWERS TO HELP PUT OUT FIRES

Rain Forecast Tonight or Tomorrow in Part of Affected Area

Milwaukee—(AP)—Cloudy skies gave some promise to residents of northern Wisconsin and the Michigan peninsula today that incipient fires which linger in peat soil and brushlands of the region will soon be extinguished or materially retarded by rain.

Moderate breezes prevailed and the humidity of the air gave promise that rainfall would be sufficiently heavy to put out the fires entirely. Forest rangers patrolling areas in the vicinity of Chetek, Wis., and Menominee, Mich., where thousands of acres and scores of homes were laid waste in the last three days, reported all major blazes under control.

Variable winds were destined to bring showers in the eastern portion of the affected area tonight or tomorrow, according to Frank H. Coleman, meteorologist in charge of the Milwaukee Weather Bureau.

Local headquarters of the Federal Forestry Bureau announced a preliminary survey revealed destruction of about 700 acres of trees in the Flambeau forestry unit and about 1,800 acres in the Oneida unit. No fires had been reported in the Mousqua unit. Two extensive fires in federal forestry units of upper Michigan were under control, the local bureau announced.

GREEN BAY LABOR BODY WOULD OUST ASSESSOR

Green Bay—(AP)—The Federated Trades Council of Green Bay today was launched on a movement by which it seeks the removal of August W. Icks from the office of city assessor.

Replacement of Icks as a member of the state conservation commission also will be sought. The labor organization proposes that Raymond E. Ervrad succeed him. The matter will be placed before Gov. Philip F. LaFollette, George Mercier, president of the Green Bay Labor Temple association, said.

At a meeting of the trades council last night, Mercier told fellow members that he believed Icks was not favorable to labor. Icks, he said, assessed the labor temple property at $20,000 last year. The statute provides such property exempt.

Icks defended his action by stating that part of the property was converted into a used car lot.

WIRE TAPPING LEADS TO RUM SMUGGLERS

Alleged Ring Uncovered at New Orleans—Eight Men Face Charges

New Orleans—(AP)—Evidence obtained chiefly by tapping of telephone wires today awaited presentation to the grand jury in the government's case against eight men charged with rum smuggling operations said to involve shipping of a million dollars worth of Canadian whisky to the Gulf of Mexico for distribution to inland cities.

The eight men yesterday were bound over after a preliminary hearing. They were arrested last Saturday by federal operatives after more than five months of investigation. The defendants are:

M. D. O'Neal of New Orleans, alleged representative of a Vancouver distiller; Albert Morrison, charged with representing Canadian distillers; Joseph Miller, Al Hart and Al Heim of Chicago; Cecil Squires and Jerry Woods of New Orleans, and Charles Andres, operator of the radio station seized when the arrests were made.

Captain W. Bruce Murray, former army officer, admitted at the hearing that he cut in on long distance telephone calls to apartments and he testified that the action was sanctioned by the United States attorney general.

The government contended that the radio station directed contact between mother ships in the gulf and smaller boats, that the cargoes were hauled into a pean orchard in Mississippi and shipped under a layer of lumber in freight cars to fictitious consignees.

Through listening in officers got new telephone numbers which enabled them to trace others wanted in the conspiracy which is reputed to involve a hundred men.

WANTS STUDY MADE OF CUSTOMS RELATIONS

Berlin—(AP)—Foreign Minister Julius Curtius has requested the secretary of the League of Nations to place the question of European trade relationships on the agenda of the Pan-European committee.

Official circles pointed out today that the minister's move was not unfriendly to the recent British note to Geneva, relating to the same general matter, but rather supplements it. Germany was said to be desirous that the economic aspects of the Austro-German customs accord be reviewed by the Pan-European committee as well as by the council of the league.

INVESTIGATE CAUSE OF MICHIGAN FIRE

Insurance Officials Trying to Follow Theory of Incendiarism

Menominee, Mich.—(AP)—Numerous investigations were under way here today into the fire which destroyed the J. W. Wells Lumber company's plant at an estimated loss of more than $1,000,000.

Representatives of the National Underwriters' association were inquiring into the fire, which A. C. Wells, president, said he thought was of incendiary origin. Adjusters for companies holding the $800,000 insurance on the company held on its stock of lumber also were here. As the insurance was 100 per cent coverage, it was understood full payment would be made.

No insurance was carried on the sawmill. It was of fireproof construction. The rate for it too expensive, company officials believed. Accordingly, the company bore its own insurance on the $200,000 structure.

Inspectors from the Michigan fire inspection bureau were on the grounds today, checking into the theory that the fire was set by some enemy of the concern.

COURTESY DEMANDED OF CHICAGO POLICE

Chicago—(AP)—Mayor Anton J. Cermak wants Chicago's police department to be "the most courteous in the world." He so advised his secretary, Henry Sosenheim yesterday over the long distance telephone from Miami Beach, Fla.

GENERAL PERSHING ON VOYAGE TO EUROPE

New York—(AP)—General John J. Pershing sailed for Europe on the Lusitania today to carry on his work as chairman of the battle monuments commission.

Another passenger was John Galsworthy, English novelist, who spent the winter in the United States. He left a memorandum for the press in which he said he had "put in a long spell of work" on a new novel while he was in Arizona.

CABINET IN ARGENTINA GOES OUT OF OFFICE

Buenos Aires—(AP)—The Argentine cabinet resigned today, handing its collective resignation to the president. The resignation was not accepted but decision was expected later in the day.

The resignations followed the announcement of partial returns in last week's provincial elections showing that the radical candidate, Dr. Horacio Pueyrredon, was leading the conservative candidate.

Minister of the Interior Sanchez Sorondo said that the members of the cabinet told President Uriburu they would continue at their posts until a new ministry was designated.

REAPPORTMENTMENT BILL SIGNED IN MICHIGAN

Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—Governor Wilbur Brucker today signed the reapportionment bill which gives Wayne (Detroit) five congressmen and creates another district out of part of Wayne and all of Oakland.

The districts will be changed but slightly. The state will have 17 districts instead of 13 under the law.

BULLETIN

Chicago—(AP)—The cashier and one of eight bandits who engaged in a gun battle with a guard at the Baker State bank in Cicero were wounded today while employees and patrons of the bank covered under the shower of bullets. The robbers, hearing their wounded comrade, fled empty-handed. There was between $50,000 and $60,000 cash in the bank at the time.

Schwab Wins Support At Bethlehem Steel Meeting

Newark, N. J.—(AP)—Charles M. Schwab, the "old man" of Bethlehem Steel, apparently has won "the last star in the diadem" which crowns his years in the industry.

He appeared at a meeting of stockholders yesterday, faced a hostile faction and pleaded for ratification of the bonus system under which officers of the corporation have received approximately $36,000,000 in the last 14 years.

The management, which he represented, held proxies for 72 per cent of the outstanding common and preferred stock. In their struggle to prevent a vote on the bonus system, a minority had carried the case into court. Shortly before the meeting was called the court ruled that a vote might be taken, but the result could not be entered in the minutes until the suit should be finally determined. The minority asked that fixed sums be paid to officers and directors in lieu of the bonus.

Mr. Schwab accepted responsibility for the bonus system. His defense of it was such that even dissenting stockholders sometimes joined in cheers and applause.

"The crowning star in the diadem of long steel management is the approval that people give to what you have done," he said. "The old man won't be with you many more years—and I am not appealing on the ground of personality—but he would like to add to add to his diadem the one last star of your approval of what he has done."

He recalled that he had risked his personal fortune in Bethlehem on every occasion up to 1918. From

Pledge More Liberty For All Groups

Safeguard Property Rights and Guarantee Religious Freedom

Madrid—(AP)—Respect for private property, and religious creeds, determination to enlarge liberty in Spain and modification of the agrarian policy in order to aid the farmers, form the main points in the program of the new republican government as announced today.

The summoning of a constitutional cortes, or parliament, also is included, although the date was not specified.

The text of the government's manifesto says:

In order to show the democratic origin of its power and in view of the responsibility in which all organs of the state submit its collective and individual acts to the sanction of a constitutional cortes—the supreme and direct organ of the national will, and when the hour arrives the government will turn over to the cortes its powers.

ROYAL FAMILY QUITS COUNTRY, ENTERS EXILE

Alfonso Reported on Way to England—May Visit United States

Madrid—(AP)—The royal family of Spain was out-ward bound for exile today and the new republican government inaugurated its first day of power with a manifesto announcing its program.

Scores of political exiles returned from foreign lands to aid the establishment of the order for which they were banished, other scores of monarchists left voluntarily to live abroad.

A national holiday was decreed and the people continued yesterday's celebration over the fall of the monarchy.

Political prisoners were liberated throughout the nation but the government refused to free common law offenders.

Resignations of several Spanish ambassadors were received from abroad and foreign envoys hastened to pay their respects to the new foreign office.

Martial law was proclaimed at Barcelona as the result of partisan clashes with a 24 hour strike was declared to guard against a possible monarchist coup.

The text of the king's last proclamation to his people was kept secret on the ground that the time was not propitious.

AWAILED IN ENGLAND

London—(AP)—Former King Alfonso, fleeing from Spain, is expected to arrive in England within the next few days, where he will be met by another king without a crown in this old country, refuge of so many exiled monarchs.

A livelier topic of conversation today was whether Alfonso, now that he is finally off his shaky throne, will gratify his long desire and visit the United States. He has often expressed his inclination to the United States and see everything, from Manhattan to Hollywood.

Madrid—(AP)—Former Queen Victoria of Spain left the royal palace for France today with four of her children, the last of the royal family to go, and the colors of the new Spanish republic were draped across the doors of the palace. The queen left by train for Irun on the Franco-Spanish border.

In the meantime former King Alfonso, who boarded a cruiser at Cartagena this morning, was sailing westward on the Mediterranean, presumably for England.

The final scene of parting took place in the station of Escorial, near the palace, today as the queen and her two daughters and two sons, last of the family to depart, bade adieu on the station platform to a little band of faithful retainers, grandees and aristocrats who had gathered to wish them goodspeed.

Scores of members of the aristocracy of Spain were also bound out of Spain on express trains, pending a settlement of the country's affairs.

With the queen went the Infanta Christina of Austria, the crown prince of the Asturias and Prince Gonzalo, the youngest son.

One untoward incident marked the departure of the royal family. A republican sympathizer at the station during an interval in the shout of the monarchists for royalty, shouted "viva republica!" He was promptly manhandled by a group of aristocrats and hustled off the station platform.

Plans Kept Secret

Plans for the departure of the queen and her children were made with the strictest secrecy. They arrived at the station from the palace in automobiles, accompanied only by a few close friends and a score of civil guards.

At sight of the group which was waiting at the station, made up of friends of the gaily days at the palace and the colors of the queen broke down and sobbed pitifully as she was assisted by her two handsome daughters aboard the train.

The tragic events of the past week while the ancient throne was tottering.

REGENTS OUTLINE THEIR POSITION ON GIFTS TO U. OF W.

Madison—(AP)—The question of accepting gifts with "strings attached," long a controversial matter at the University of Wisconsin, came into the open again today when the board of regents went on record as willing to receive them only when it has full discretion as to their disposal.

The matter came before the board of regents in regard to a private gift, a $250,000 trust left by the late Thomas E. Brittingham, Madison capitalist.

General unanimity that no bequests should be accepted that in any way require negotiations with outside judgments on every project affected was given by the board after a two-hour debate. The Brittingham trust, interest from which has been given to Dr. Alexander Melickjohn as professor of philosophy and director of the experimental college, was to go to Dr. Paul Carl Link, for a five-year project in biochemistry.

APPLETON FIRM GETS MANITOWOC SCHOOL JOB

Manitowoc—(AP)—The Manitowoc board of education today accepted the bid of the Hoffman Construction company, Appleton, Wis., on a contract for the construction of the Woodrow Wilson junior high school building. The low bid on the school building was $160,000.

In awarding the contract the board reserved the right to include within the next 40 days construction of an auditorium which would increase the contract price to $219,823.

Fifteen bids were received. The contract does not provide for electrical appliances, heating, plumbing or tile. It was estimated the complete building will cost $200,000.

GOV. ROOSEVELT ASKS FOR REPORT ON QUIZ

New York—(AP)—Less than 24 hours after District Attorney Thomas C. Crain had testified that his office was unable to stamp out racketeering in New York, Governor Roosevelt asked that a copy of the minutes of the removal proceedings against Mr. Crain be sent to him.

The governor's request was made in a letter to Commissioner Samuel Seabury, who is conducting the investigation of Mr. Crain's office. There was no explanation of the request except that it would enable the governor "to keep up with the main current of events."

Nine Americans Killed Within Week By Nicaraguan Rebels

LARGE NUMBER NATIVES ALSO ARE VICTIMS

Marine Forces Ambushed After They Rush to Aid Attacked Region

Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua.—(P)—United States marines from the U. S. S. Asheville landed today to protect the populace against attacks from Nicaraguan insurgents. Nine Americans and many natives have been slain since Saturday.

Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua.—(P)—Nine Americans have been killed by Nicaraguan insurgents in the vicinity of Logtown, about 70 miles from here, since last Saturday morning.

The insurgents, who attacked a lumber camp there by surprise, and have since ravaged nearby haciendas, have slain a large but undetermined number of natives, although meeting with some reverses themselves at the hands of the Nicaraguan constabulary, with American marine officers.

The insurgents suddenly appeared at Logtown at about 7 o'clock in the morning of April 11, barely giving the commissary clerk the time to call the Wawa junction telephone exchange. He shouted "help" into the mouthpiece and ran, leaving the 1-circuit down.

The Wawa operator as a consequence was able to hear the bandits as they looted the Logtown commissary and notified Puerto Cabezas and other encampments in the vicinity.

An automobile carrying William Selser and "Pinkie" Wilson, and Arthur Curtis, Americans, took a machine and four of the guards toward the lumber camp but stopped some distance away to await Captain Harlan Peffey and four more of the guards, before proceeding to Logtown.

When they were near the place the insurgents, who had prepared an ambush, opened fire from behind, killing Captain Peffey and wounding a guard, and Selser, who died later. A fight followed and after a while the insurgents withdrew, the guards picking up their dead and wounded and returning to the commissary reported the fight to Puerto Cabezas.

Rebels Tap Wires
The insurgents had tapped the wires and were listening to the appeal for help so that when Lieut. Clyde Roy Darrah, Ralph Beardsley and 20 men from Puerto Cabezas approached they found another ambush and were taken by the Nicaraguans. They later fought their way out.

Marine corps planes bombed the insurgents Sunday morning, enabling the guards to improve its position. Reinforcements under Captain J. C. Wood and Lieutenant Simmer joined the guard Monday morning and engaged the insurgents in a battle, killing eight of them, including the high standard bearer, Pedro Blandon.

The guards' detachment arrived at Puerto Cabezas Tuesday afternoon exhausted, Beardsley bringing Blandon's sword. Three of their number bore wounds. They said that the insurgents had attacked many farms in the area, killing everyone except their sympathizers, who were identified by red handkerchiefs which they wore around their necks.

The bodies of victims were chopped into small pieces with machetes and the heads impaled on fence pickets. All buildings and bridges were burned and rails torn up.

The gunboat Asheville arrived here early Tuesday morning. Its failure to land a detachment of marines immediately to reinforce the guards here caused dismay among both Americans and Nicaraguans, who are in fear of another attack from the insurgents, who are numerous and well armed.

DELAYS RECORD ATTEMPT
Miami Beach, Fla.—(P)—After making an inspection of the Indian Creek course, Gar Wood said conditions this morning were not satisfactory for an attempt to set a world's speed record.

It costs the taxpayers of the United States $1,800 every time a 16-inch coast defense gun fires one shot.

ICE CREAM MAKERS PROTEST NEW BILL

Increased Milk Fat in Production Means Smaller Scoops, They Warn

Madison.—(P)—Smaller scoops of ice cream will follow passage of a bill to increase the milk fat content of ice cream, manufacturers warned the assembly agriculture committee here yesterday.

Due to "richness" from the increased fat, less ice cream will be eaten and less milk will be used in its manufacture, the committee was informed. A higher milk fat content would increase the cost of ice cream about 4 cents a gallon. The bill seeks to increase the fat content 2 per cent. It now is 12 per cent.

Manufacturers who appeared against the bill were H. L. Carver, Oshkosh; A. E. Piper, Janesville; J. A. Brandt, Prairie du Chien; F. J. Schmidt, Elkhorn, president of the state association; Charles P. Toulton, Janesville; R. T. Eisman, Prairie du Chien, and W. L. Iserman, Kenosha.

George F. Comings, former lieutenant governor and now state humane agent; Walter J. Dettloff, superintendent of the Wisconsin Humane society; Assemblyman Don Smith, and William Busse, Dane county humane agent, appeared for the bill to increase the size of poultry shipping crates.

Losses to shippers from cramped or smothered poultry now total from 25 to 35 per cent of the shipment, the committee was told.

LOVE BAZAAR CASE MAY BE DECIDED TODAY BY JUDGE

Further Action to Be Determined by Findings of Court

San Diego, Calif.—(P)—Counsel in the preliminary hearing of Alexander Pantages, theatre owner, and four co-defendants, accused of crimes against two-year-old girls, said they expected to submit their cases to Judge Arthur L. Mundo for a decision today.

The justice court will determine whether sufficient evidence has been offered by the state to hold the defendants for trial.

The state planned hope on the testimony of the girls, Lydia Nitto and Camille Livingston, and Leslie T. White, investigator of the Los Angeles district attorney's office, who asserted he obtained confessions from two of the defendants, Mrs. Olive Clark Day and William Jobelmann, the latter a former press agent for Pantages.

While denied the statements, which have been repudiated were won through promises of immunity to Jobelmann.

"I never promised anybody immunity," White said.

Miss Livingston testified that after she had taken several drinks the night the alleged crimes were committed, she could not remember what happened. In the complaint what happened.

Richard I. Schollin, manager of a fashionable hotel here, testified an alleged party last October was not given at his hotel. He added, however, he had warned John P. Mills, land promoter and the fifth defendant, that he had heard of plans for such a party and would "throw out everybody connected with it."

"Long Live Spain!" Cries Alfonso In His Farewell

Cartagena, Spain.—(P)—"Viva Espana!"—Long live Spain—were Alfonso's words of farewell to the country which has acknowledged him as king since his birth, 45 years ago.

It was 4 o'clock this morning when the automobile bringing him, a cousin and the chief of the royal household from Madrid arrived here, driving through the city by a circuitous route so as to avoid demonstrations. Only a few hundred persons saw the royal car and its escort of soldiers. Some of these cheered, others jeered.

Heavy police guards were stationed about the docks, and would not let any one come near except a few newspapermen and port authorities.

A party of army and naval officers were already gathered at the quay and they cheered as the deposed monarch stepped down from the car.

He was smoking a cigaret, and was attired in a sack suit covered by a brown overcoat. He wore a grey hat, which he doffed for a moment as he shook hands with the officers. One of them, Admiral Magas, who was a member of General Primo de Rivera's cabinet during the dictatorship, spoke to him, remarking how much he felt about all that had happened.

Alfonso replied: "I am continuing my traditions."

He lit another cigaret and stepped aboard a tiny launch waiting at the dock. The officers cheered and shouted "viva rey"—Long live the king. Alfonso replied simply, "Viva Espana!"—long live Spain.

The little launch shoved its way out into the bay, where the deposed king boarded the cruiser, Principe Alfonso, for his trip into exile. At 4:35 a. m. the cruiser lifted anchor and sailed away to an unannounced destination.

WISCONSIN WOMEN WILLING TO SIGN FOR DRY REFORM

Post-Crescent Washington B.

Wisconsin—Wisconsin women are all willing to sign up in the women's organization for national prohibition reform. The Badger state officers told the national convention of women anti-prohibitionists here today. Only four thousand have done so to date.

Mrs. Gertrude Bowler of Sheboygan, chairman, and Mrs. H. A. Sawyer of Milwaukee, secretary, made the following report.

"Our state does not believe in prohibition and never has. We are honest about it. We have no state enforcement laws. Enrolling members in Wisconsin is merely a matter of getting the cards to the women; they are all willing to sign. We have four thousand members now, but the number itself means very little, because when it comes to voting wet we will all be there."

Under Mr. Schmiege's measure the examiner for the industrial commission could at his discretion, or at the request of the workmen, appoint an impartial physician to make an examination and file a report in writing. The cost of this examination and testimony would be born from the commission's appropriation.

ASSEMBLY PASSES SCHMIEGE BILL BY UNANIMOUS VOTE

Measure Would Give Workmen Chance to Be Examined by Impartial Doctor

The state assembly this week unanimously passed a bill, introduced by Oscar J. Schmiege, Appleton, assemblyman from the first Outagamie-co district, which would permit workmen injured while on duty to be examined and treated by an impartial physician—one not employed by the company for which the man is working. The expense would be borne by the state.

Mr. Schmiege pointed out that this measure is looked on by labor of Wisconsin, as one of the most forward-looking pieces of legislation introduced in the legislature this year. Under the present system, Mr. Schmiege said, when a workman who has been injured seeks compensation under the Workmen's Compensation act, the testimony of a company doctor naturally would lean toward the insurance company.

The applicant may be a very poor man who doesn't have the money to spend to secure a physician to make an impartial examination, nor can he charge, as a part of his settlement, the cost of such physician's examination or testimony.

Under Mr. Schmiege's measure the examiner for the industrial commission could at his discretion, or at the request of the workmen, appoint an impartial physician to make an examination and file a report in writing. POUR CONCRETE FOR BUILDING AT LAWRENCE

New Institute of Paper Chemistry Structure to Be Ready in Fall

The Ben B. Ganther company, Oshkosh, has completed excavation and begun pouring concrete for the new building of the Lawrence college Institute of Paper Chemistry. Construction is being rushed, and it is expected that it will be completed and ready for occupancy when the college opens next September.

The building, located on E. South River-st., almost opposite the new gymnasium, was designed by Orblison and Orblison of Appleton, in association with Chester Wolcott, Chicago architect. It will be constructed of Lannon stone with Indiana limestone trim to match the new Alexander gymnasium. It will be two stories high, with a large basement and will have a frontage of 115 feet on E. South River-st. There will be two wings, the east one 54 feet and the west wing 63 feet in length.

The plumbing contract has been awarded to the A. H. Angermeyer Plumbing and Heating company of Neenah, according to R. J. Watts, business manager of Lawrence college.

Erection of the building was made imperative at this time because the work of the Institute has progressed so rapidly that the old quarters in the Alexander gymnasium were already overcrowded after only one and one-half years. There are four full time and five part time members on the Institute faculty, and the admission of new students next fall and the addition of much needed equipment made new quarters necessary.

K. of C. Members will meet to say the Rosary at 8 o'clock Wed. nite at the home of the deceased Brother James Wood, Town of Greenville.

STATE RESERVISTS PLAN CONTACT CAMP, ROUND-UP ON MAY 9

Maj. Gen. Summerall and Maj. Gen. Parker Will Be Speakers

About six Appleton regular army, National Guard and reserve army officers are expected to attend the 1931 annual spring round-up and contact camp of the state department of the United States Reserve Army Officers' association at Madison on May 9. Reservists from the entire state will attend the conference, which will feature various phases of military activity and which usually finds prominent army officers in this section of the state present.

The principal speaker will be Major General Charles P. Summerall, former chief of staff of the United States army who recently retired from active duty. Another prominent army officer to attend will be Maj. General Frank Parker, Chicago, commanding the Sixth corps area of which Wisconsin is a part. The navy will be represented by Rear Admiral W. S. Cropley, commandant of the Great Lakes naval training station at Chicago.

The program gets under way at 8 o'clock in the morning May 9 with registration of officers, more than 500 of whom are expected to be in attendance from all over Wisconsin. The remainder of the morning will be devoted to branch conferences in the infantry, cavalry, field artillery, engineers, medical and supply branches, with Col. George R. Greene, Milwaukee, chief of staff of the 101st Division in charge and supplying instructors for the various branches.

Pistol and rifle matches will also be held during the morning for members of the Association and the R. O. T. C. students from middle western universities and colleges who are expected to attend.

The afternoon program contemplates competitive drills staged by R. O. T. C. units and demonstrations in air service, chemical warfare, signal corps and national guard activities. A formal guard mount by the band and honor guard of St. John's Military academy at Delafield also will be held.

Ex-Army Chief

Major General Charles P. Summerall, retired, former chief of staff of the United States army, will be the speaker at the spring round-up and contact camp for reserve army officers at Madison on Saturday, May 9. At least six Appleton reservists will attend the meeting.

The evening program includes a banquet and dance at which Brigadier General Ralph M. Immell of the Wisconsin National Guard will be toastmaster. A committee of Madison officers' wives has been formed and is at work making plans for the entertainment of the ladies of the officer delegates.

RESERVE OFFICERS TO HEAR GEN. IMMELL

Meeting of Appleton, Green Bay, Manitowoc Chapters Saturday

Appleton, Green Bay and Manitowoc reserve army officers will hold a joint meeting at the Beaumont hotel, Green Bay, Saturday evening, according to word received here Tuesday by reservists. The principal speaker will be Brig. Gen. Ralph M. Immell, of the Wisconsin National Guard, adjutant general for the state of Wisconsin.

A joint meeting of officers from the three cities was held several weeks ago at Green Bay with Judge George Crowns, Kewaunee as the speaker. A meeting with Gen. Immell as speaker was planned earlier in the month, but was postponed because the general could not keep the appointment.

About 10 Appleton reserve and National Guard officers will attend.

RURAL MAIL CARRIERS TO MAKE 15-DAY COUNT

Rural mail carriers at the Appleton post office, acting under orders from the federal postal department, will count the pieces of mail delivered in the two weeks from May 1 to 15, according to W. H. Zuehlke, acting postmaster. The carriers also will keep a record of the number of money orders and stamps they sell in this period. A report will be submitted at the end of the period to the federal department at Washington.

County Board Ready To Renew Debate On Courthouse Question

NO ACTION ON MATTER SEEN AT THIS TIME

Special Committee to Recommend Construction of Additions

BY H. K. DERBIS

Debate over proposed construction of a new courthouse is expected to be renewed by the county board of supervisors at its spring meeting, which opens next Tuesday, April 21, for four days.

The question has resulted in a sharp division within the ranks of the board. One faction wants immediate construction of a new building. Another group is unalterably opposed to any action for four or five years. A third faction, although agreeing that there is a scarcity of room in the courthouse, believes that the problem can be settled by the construction of additions to the building.

A final vote on the proposal to erect a new building is not expected next week. Even if a vote is taken, it is not likely that the question would find enough supporters for passage. The rift in the board must be brought closer together, it is believed, before the matter can meet with approval.

Many supervisors declare there is a keen need for more space. They point out that the judges are working under handicaps in courtrooms that are antiquated and too small. They say that the safety of county records is imperiled by the lack of fireproof storage space, and that many of the county officers and their assistants are working under cramped conditions, lowering their efficiency. They allege that the building is a fire trap, and hold that some steps must be taken to protect the workers on the third floor, whose lives might be endangered if there should be a fire.

Leads For Addition

The recommendation of the special county board building committee for the construction of four additions to the courthouse is almost certain to meet with opposition. One group of supervisors appears to feel that it would be a mistake to spend $40,000, the estimated cost of the work, on a plan which would afford only temporary relief, and only a part of the congested area.

Proposed construction of additions to the courthouse was advanced by Supervisor A. W. Leas, of Grand Chute, who has vigorously opposed every move toward building a new courthouse. He claims the additions will solve all the problems and make the present building good for another 25 or 30 years.

The proposed additions would be built at the four corners of the building. L-shaped additions would be constructed at the southeast and southwest corners, affording more room for the register of deeds and county clerk. An eight-foot addition would be made at the northeast corner, giving relief to the clerk of courts. A 16-foot addition at the northwest corner would provide needed room for the county treasurer. All of the additions would be one story high and a basement would be placed under the southeast corner addition, providing room for the milk testing laboratory of the Outagamie County Milk Order Testing association.

Supervisors who object to additions point out that this plan would afford no relief for the congestion existing in the courts. It would not provide sufficient storage space for leviable taxes and would not make the courthouse fireproof they contend. They claim it would be an extravagance to build additions such as are suggested, and that the result would be architecturally unpleasant.

See Ordinance Fight

And the board faces the prospect of another battle as a result of the fact that the ordinance, Anton Jansen, Little Chute, and Leas, it is said, again will lead an attack on the measure. Mr. Jansen objects to the measure because it makes enforcement of the dance hall ordinance compulsory in villages, but exempts cities which have a local regulatory measure. Mr. Jansen says he thinks villages also are entitled to this exemption. Just how far they will go in their attack is not certain, but it is believed the supervisors will sanction any move to kill the ordinance. It is likely, however, that the present closing hour provision, setting 12:30 as a limit, may be extended.

Four new supervisors will take seats when the board meets Tuesday. They are: Mike Jacobs, Fourth ward, Appleton, succeeding John Tracy, who did not seek reelection; Otto Thiesenhusen, First ward, Appleton who defeated L. F. Bushey; Marcus Baumgartner, Fifth ward, Appleton, who defeated Peter Rademacher; and Wesley Sherman, First ward, Seymour, to succeed F. W. Huth, who did not seek reelection.

As this is the organization meeting, the supervisors will elect a chairman and a vice chairman.

PREPARE TO DRAG MILL POND WHEN "VICTIM" APPEARS

Hortonville village officials, led by Alvin Kuhn, constable, were preparing to drag the mill pond in the village yesterday afternoon for the body of a Manawa man believed to have drowned, when the man appeared. The "drowning" scare resulted when village officials were informed that a car, without a license, had been noticed at the edge of the pond for a day. It was thought the owner might have parked his car there and either fallen or jumped into the water. The constable notified Sheriff John Lappen and asked him to assist in the search. Before the sheriff started for Hortonville, however, he received another message informing him the owner of the car had arrived and claimed the machine. He told village officials the motor had stopped, and he had abandoned the machine until he could secure aid.

STUDENT-TO-EUROPE PROJECT POSTPONED

Lack of Financial Support Is Given as Reason for Action

The Lawrence college student-to-Europe project has been postponed until next year because of lack of sufficient financial support to make the undertaking a success, according to Harold Sperka, chairman of the committee to select the student to Europe. At least $500 is necessary, Mr. Sperka said, and less than $355 has been subscribed by students and faculty to date.

The student-to-Europe plan originated in 1927 when Miss Ellen Tutton was selected as the representative. A committee of seven students elected by the student body and three faculty members selected by the committee is chosen each year to select the student who travels for a year in foreign countries and studies at European schools. It is hoped that because the project is postponed for a year the student body and faculty will give it their entire support next year, the committee reported in announcing its decision. Members of the committee this year are Harold Sperka, chairman, Lois Kleih, Cecelia Werner, Verna Lauritzen, Hayward Biggers, Russell Danburg and John Strange.

12 Killed, 40 Injured in Tunnel Blaze

Twelve men were killed and 40 injured, some seriously, when fire broke out in a tunnel 35 feet under a Chicago street and filled the bore with smoke that overcame workmen and firemen. A score of men who had taken refuge in an air chamber at one end of the tube emerged alive after being imprisoned 14 hours. Heroic firemen donned masks and plunged into the oven-like gas-filled tunnel in attempts to rescue a few who might have survived, but found the fumes in the bore so heavy that even their masks were no protection. This photo shows some of the men, unconscious or gasping for air, being brought to the surface after a few minutes in the tunnel.

British Newspapers Laud Alfonso For Abdication

London (AP)—Whatever their judgment of Alfonso's kingship, London newspapers of all shades of opinion, from Socialist to Tory, today gave the fallen monarch credit for the manner of his retirement from the throne, complimenting him for sparing Spain the bloodshed which, it was held, must inevitably have resulted from any attempt on his part to hold the sovereignty against the popular will.

"By his prompt and statesmanlike acceptance of the facts, Alfonso spared his country the cruel ordeal of a civil war," says the Times, while the Socialist Herald, together with papers of other views, accords him the same high merit.

On the other hand it is widely admitted that he brought the fate upon himself by supporting the dictatorship of Primo de Rivera.

"If most Spaniards are still monarchist at heart," says the Times, they are hostile to Alfonso, whose support of the dictatorship cost him the throne. Material benefits alone cannot satisfy a people or compensate them permanently for the loss of their liberty."

It was being assumed that England would be Alfonso's future home, temporarily at least, and it was pointed out that he would be welcomed here for his bonhomie, accessibility, interest in sport and his unswerving relations with the British royal family, which have long made him popular here.

It was said that his exile was not likely to be embittered by poverty. If current reports are true he is one of the richest men in Europe, and foreseeing the possibility of loss of the throne he had laid his plans well. The story goes that he not only inherited an immense fortune from his mother, Queen Christina, but himself possessed financial genius which led him to make many shrewd investments. It was also said that he had withdrawn most of his funds from Spain and reinvested them in American and British securities.

Although there was no authoritative announcement that King Alfonso was headed for England, the present supposition is that he will come here and probably reside with his family at Kensington palace, where his wife's mother, Princess Beatrice, lives.

ELDERLY MAN TRIES TO TAKE OWN LIFE

Charles Hartkopf, 74, Slashes Wrists and Throat

Charles Hartkopf, 74, 519 W. Commercial-st., is in a serious condition at St. Elizabeth hospital as a result of an effort to take his own life in the garage at the rear of his home about 7 o'clock last night. The aged man slashed his throat, wrists, arms and feet with a razor, police reported. He was taken to the hospital, where attending physicians said his condition is serious, although he had a chance to recover.

The old man was found in the garage by Roy Heiser, also of 519 W. Commercial-st., at whose home Hartkopf was staying. Hartkopf had been in ill health for a long time. When he was missed, Mr. Heiser started looking for him. He had used an old razor to slash his wrists, his arms inside the elbows, his throat and both his feet above the toes. Police Chief George T. Prim and Officer Carl Radtke, who were called, took the man to the hospital in an ambulance.

WLS ORCHESTRA WILL FEATURE MANY WELL KNOWN RADIO STARS

Lions Club Sponsoring Program Next Friday Night at Chapel

WLS Barn Dance Orchestra, with "Pie Plant Pete," Harry and Lela Lombard, Grace Wilson and seven or eight other artists well known to radio fans, will appear at Lawrence Memorial chapel Friday evening in a program designed to raise funds for blind work in Outagamie county. The program is being sponsored by the Lions club.

Lawrence chapel stage will be changed to a scene similar to that at Station WLS, the Prairie Farmer station, Chicago, for Friday evening's concert. A program of vaudeville numbers lasting nearly two hours will be presented.

The program will feature "Pie Plant Pete" with his guitar and quaint mountain and cowboy songs, Grace Wilson with her favorite song "Honey, Stay in Your Own Back Yard," the Lombards with songs, and Lela with her comedy impersonations that are claimed to leave the audience weak from laughter.

A special appeal has been made to farm radio fans to attend the program. Most of them are favorite fans of Station WLS and the opportunity to see the radio artists in person may not come again for years. Because many farm folks are expected to attend, all but 400 seats at Lawrence chapel will be general admission seats. The first persons to arrive will get the best selection.

Proceeds from the concert will be used to centralize blind work in the county. The Lions' long have been interested in county blind but found trouble securing materials with which to make artificial eyes. This has been found to be a low cost. It has been found that the method of selling the articles results in a price so high blind manufacturers cannot compete with other manufacturers. It is believed by the Lions they can set up an organization to buy materials cheaper and sell the completed article at a price that will bring about ready sale and will return more to the blind persons.

NEW Regulations Agreed Upon By Plane Companies

Detroit (AP)—Carrying of pets—animals or birds—in passenger cabins will be barred from airlines and only children in arms under two years of age will be carried free on domestic routes as a result of conferences of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce held here in connection with the National Aircraft show.

These regulations, together with a number of other agreements reached by chamber committees representing the aircraft industry, were announced today as the culmination of a series of conferences lasting nearly a week.

Adoption of a code of standard practices to insure safety in the manufacture and operation of aircraft, development of an uniform system to aid the interchange of traffic between air transport lines, and authorization of a study of maintenance methods to reduce operating costs were numbered among committee agreements.

A code of 12 rules for the manufacturer was laid down after two years of study. The rules cover design of planes and equipment for a specific type of flying, provide that suitable control be attained at all speeds; that insurance be given of ample power in multimotored ships for full load carrying with one motor out; and call for proper ventilation, proper lighting, greatest possible visibility for pilot, and elimination of fire hazards and noise.

Twenty-four rules for airline operators' guidance included adoption of a rigid policy as to weather conditions under which flying will be permitted; insistence upon installation and use of complete communication system for a check and control of all operations and enforcement of all department of commerce traffic regulations.

Other rules call for fenced off areas for spectators and loading chutes for passengers.

The dance will be held all over again next Saturday night.

HUGE DROP IN VALUATION OF STATE PROPERTY

Decrease Is $79,520,787 Over 1930, Report Indicates

Madison —(P)—The valuation of personal property and real estate in Wisconsin last year was $79,520,787 less than in 1930, according to Charles D. Rosa, member of the state tax commission.

Last year's valuation was the first to show a drop from the previous year since the tax commission began making the state assessment. About $157,000,000 will be added to the decrease in 1931 as the result of the repeal of the personal property tax on automobiles.

"Personal property dropped $32,549,582 while real estate dropped $46,971,205," Mr. Rosa said. "The total drop was $79,520,787. This drop in value of assessed property is certain to be exceeded this year."

"It is hard to estimate how much the drop will be. However, after conferences with our property tax men in all parts of the state and a consideration of the data already at hand, I am reasonably certain that the drop will be several hundred million dollars aside from the loss incurred by taking the automobiles off the tax roll."

Wisconsin property was worth $5,898,431,628 in 1930. The tax commissioner said that the value of towns, dropped $99,463,321 in 1930 from the value of 1929. Of this, $14,543,777 was in personal property and $84,919,544 in real estate.

"It would not be surprising," he said, "if the value of towns alone dropped $150,000,000 or more this year. It is already evident that the value of personal property of towns will decrease in excess of $20,000,000. Sales indicate that farm property is badly off in some quarters. However, the sales are meager and erratic and the situation can only be sensed by obtaining a comprehensive view of the whole state."

City real estate rose in value $30,318,014 in 1930, Mr. Rosa said, but a drop of $18,136,274 in personal property brought the net gain of cities to $12,181,770.

Mr. Rosa said the figures did not mean that local assessments would drop since such assessments do not generally follow closely the rise in real estate value.

WHEAT, RYE BELOW AVERAGE THIS YEAR

Report from State Expert Also Says Pasturage Is Under Normal

Madison —(P)—The condition of wheat, rye and pasturage in Wisconsin is below average, Walter Ebling, agricultural statistician for the department of agriculture and markets, announced here today in the first crop report for the year.

"While the winter was unusually mild, crops had suffered much from dry weather in the fall with the result that this spring they are in somewhat poorer than average condition," Mr. Ebling said.

Winter wheat is 80 per cent normal as compared with a ten-year average of 86 while rye is 84 per cent of normal as compared with 88 over the ten-year period. The condition of pasture is 75 per cent of normal as compared with a six-year average of 87.

Inasmuch as more than one-third of the land in Wisconsin farms is in pasture, the low condition of pastures is an item of importance, Mr. Ebling said. Pastures are depended upon to carry the livestock industries from May to November to produce about 35 per cent of the farm income.

"The reduced condition of pasture which is largely the result of dry weather last summer and fall, is likely to show up in the 1931 Wisconsin livestock income," Mr. Ebling said. "As with pasture, hay also is likely to make below average production this year because of last year's drought. Both the acreage and the yield of hay are likely to be below average."

The condition of winter wheat during the past month for the country as a whole was reported as 88.3.

ISSUES WARNING ON PARKING ORDINANCES

Chief Says Arrests Will Be Made if Motorists Are Not More Diligent

A warning was issued this week by Police Chief George T. Prim to Appleton motorists who disregard city parking regulations.

One of the most serious offenses the chief pointed out, is that of motorists who park their cars partly in a restricted zone which has been set aside for buses. Some motorists believe, the chief said, that if the car is partly within the parking area that they are obeying the regulations.

These restricted zones have been set aside, the chief said, so that buses will have a place to stop to load and discharge passengers. When a bus driver stops in a bus zone he sometimes finds part of the area taken up by a car parked there unlawfully. It is then necessary, before he can start out, to back the bus over an intersection, which is dangerous and apt to result in injury to pedestrians. This must be avoided, the chief said, and unless motorists observe the parking areas closely they will be taken to court.

per cent of normal as compared with 79.2 representing the ten-year average. Rye was reported 81.6 per cent of normal in the United States as compared with a $4.6 ten year average. Pastures in the country are below average in most states.

BLEND ALONE WILL NOT INSURE PERFECT FLAVOR IN COFFEE

If the Blended Coffees Are Not Roasted Evenly, Flavor Varies

In the origination and perfection of Controlled Roasting, Hills Bros. accomplished something that no other coffee roaster has yet achieved. By this patented process, the degree of roast is positively controlled. The result is that Hills Bros. Coffee is absolutely uniform. The reason for the success of Controlled Roasting is that this process roasts a few pounds at a time instead of in bulk. By a continuous process these small amounts of coffee flow through the roasters in a steady stream, roasting a little at a time. Automatic control of both the flow and the heat absolutely prevents variation in the roast.

Bold as the claim may seem, no other coffee has the flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee. Wherever Hills Bros. Coffee is introduced it quickly becomes the preferred brand.

Hills Bros. Coffee never "goes stale," because it is packed in vacuum. By this process, air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is taken from the can and kept out. Ordinary cans, even if air-tight, do not keep coffee fresh. Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name and look for the Araba—the trade mark—on the can. Sold by grocers everywhere.

BUYERS CAUTIOUS DURING TIME OF TRADE DEPRESSION

Buy in Small Lots and Pay for Purchases in Full, Waiting Upturn

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES (Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press)

New York—Investors who buy securities in times of extreme trade depression, and this applies especially to common stocks, operate on two principles. First, they take cautiously and in small lots, paying for their purchases in full and withdrawing the certificates from the market, standard stocks representing equities in essential industries. They give the preference to shares in corporations that have been tested by other periods of hard times. Such stocks are bought regardless of current earnings. It is taken for granted that business is bad and that it may continue so for a long time, but it is also taken for granted that eventual recovery is sure.

Buying of this kind is rarely reflected in the market. It is offset by selling of traders and speculators, both those who have been carrying the stock down during the decline and those who are willing to sell it short. This does not disturb the buyer of the kind described. He is willing to wait and ignore intermediate market fluctuations. At the same time he also studies earnings statements, watching for the turn in the tide which will spell profit for him on commitments already made. He takes particular note of any corporation or company which is able to make a relatively better showing than the others operating in the same line.

As an example take the case of the railroads. All during 1930 and well into 1931 railway earnings made extremely unfavorable comparisons with those of the corresponding period a year earlier. If there should be a road able to increase either gross or net while the others were losing, the securities of that road would attract the attention of this same shrewd investor. He would not rush in to buy the common stock of such a railroad because relatively better showing might be temporary, but he would look at the senior securities if they were of the grade which move in response to changes in earnings power. It might be a junior bond or it might be a preferred stock, but somewhere in the list there would generally be a security attractive from the standpoint of return and inviting purchase because it was the obligation of or an interest in an organization which was able successfully to operate under conditions which seriously handicapped its competitors.

FIRE!

Fire, carrying death and destruction in its ruinous embrace, has again demonstrated its right to rank among man's greatest enemies. In northern Wisconsin and upper Michigan it has in a few days robbed him of more than three millions in wealth.

Were this heavy loss to be brought on by a bandit gang, thousands of dollars would rest on the heads of the thieves and the entire state would be in arms to apprehend or annihilate them.

Yet in his attitude toward the fire demon man is friendly, even patronizing. Through his indifference, he incites the roaring monster to pillage and plunder.

Not in sixty years has the necessity for care in the use of fire out-of-doors been more pressing than it is this spring. Bonfires must be lighted only on calm days, and even then must not be left unwatched.

Soon the fishing season will open, sending thousands of sportsmen into northern woods, and multiplying the fire hazard a hundredfold.

Extreme caution, amounting almost to an obsession, against out-of-doors fires and ordinary fire hazards is the standard demanded in this unusually dry season for the safety of Wisconsin homes and forests.

MAN AND HIS ENVIRONMENT

One of the tragedies of the day is the many persons who are misfits in life, the wrong man in the wrong place, the square peg in the round hole.

As a result of our present economic state man cannot always choose his own surroundings or occupations. Even if he could he is not yet mentally qualified to determine sufficiently early in life the particular round hole into which he is to fit. Even though he be successful or famous according to accepted standards, he may be secretly suffering in mind and body because of morbid fears, inhibitions and other effects of maladjustment to his environment.

Perhaps the time will come when one will be able to unfailingly select the environment which will give him happiness and peace of mind. Dr. Paul B. Brooks, commissioner of health of New York state, in a recent radio broadcast discussing the subject of mental hygiene, said he believed the day of the mythical superman will come, and that through a far more advanced study of the mind and its functions than we have at present, he will, by knowing his own mind, be the absolute master of his own environment.

Such a state can come only through processes of evolution. In the meantime great progress is being made in education aimed at safeguarding the mind of a child as well as his body. Normal growth under proper instruction is necessary and the relation between parents and teachers and child is becoming more and more a matter of scientific study.

There are many queer people in the world, many always out of jobs or drudging away at work for which they are not fitted, many mentally sick, who either received a wrong start or who have strayed from the narrow path to happiness and mental peace which is their birthright. Psychological research and the study of mental hygiene, with gradually accumulating knowledge of mind functions and fundamentals, are directing with increasing success, those misfits back to the right road, or by proper training through days of childhood and youth, giving them the right start.

The days of the superman, with complete knowledge of his own mind, and complete mastery over his environment, may be far distant, but more and more it is becoming evident that increasing knowledge resulting from research and education into the fundamentals of mind training will assist in guiding the growing man into a correct and happy environment.

THE VIRGIN ISLANDS

While President Hoover's stay in the Virgin Islands was only a matter of a few hours, yet his opinion was confirmed that the islands were a liability instead of an asset, and that when we purchased them from Denmark ten years ago "we acquired an effective poor-house comprising ninety per cent of the population."

Around the streets of St. Thomas the reported opinion of the president has caused many deprecatory remarks. They claim they were not a poor-house when Denmark sold the islands to the United States, but they feel that their present distressing condition is due to stupid laws established by this country.

The Islands were progressing backwards even before they were acquired by this country. Sugar has been the main product of export but world economic conditions assisted by drought and hurricanes have jeopardized this industry, and in the opinion of administration officials, this business is on its last legs.

St. Thomas had been an important coaling point for ships plying between Europe and the Panama canal, but the substitution of oil for coal as fuel is causing them to pass this place as a port of call. The enforcement of prohibition has been an especially bitter pill to the natives as it deprived St. Thomas of its status as a bootleggers' haven in smuggling liquor into the United States.

The population is ninety per cent negro, a shiftless class with little initiative. In 1917 the population was 26,051, while in 1927 it had fallen to 20,728. It is the ambition of most all of the negro citizens to accumulate sufficient funds to emigrate to the United States.

President Hoover transferred the administration of the Islands from the Navy department to that of the Interior. Drastic action must be taken to rehabilitate the citizens and according to present plans it will be necessary to assist them in the cultivation of new crops which are marketable in the United States, such as bananas, alligator pears, lemons, pineapples, and other tropical fruits. Sixty thousand dollars is to be spent in modernizing the hotel at St. Thomas, also additional funds to add to its attractiveness as a winter resort.

Whatever results materialize from the government's efforts toward rehabilitation, whether successful or not, it is certain that the Islands will remain in the possession of the United States. If the Interior department and the efforts of Governor Pearson succeed in turning this present liability into an asset, it will be a notable achievement.

It must be remembered that we did not buy the Islands because we wanted them but to prevent Denmark from selling them to another European country. We bought them, as we had a right to buy them, as a protection against the possibility of their becoming in time of war a base of supplies for a hostile force.

The inhabitants have only one just cause for complaint,—prohibition,—and they are in no different position in that respect than the inhabitants of our entire country.

Opinions Of Others

THE VIRGIN ISLANDS OBJECT

"When Denmark transferred these West Indian possessions to the United States they certainly not constitute a poorhouse. America wanted the islands for more than seventy-five years, and when she obtained her desire she did not find them a poorhouse, but she actually proceeded to make them so by the application of stupid laws unsuited to their well-being."

"Any American insultingly alluding to the Virgin Islands today as a poorhouse can only appear devoid of decency, even though that individual be the President of the United States."

"President Hoover did not meet the noisy demonstration here which was accorded him by the Porto Ricans. Their demonstration was in keeping with the traditional Latin spirit, and could not be expected of a people who have derived their culture through contact with Anglo-Saxons and other less demonstrative peoples of Northern Europe. Nevertheless, our welcome to President Hoover was both loyal and dignified."

"In the Spanish-American War, although the Virgin Islands were under the sceptre of the Danish King, they were 100 per cent American. American warships were gladly welcomed when they ran to our ports for coal and to cable to Washington information of their belligerent activities."

"Surely this sympathy of a people is worth more than $25,000,000 in gold! Surely it should be sufficient to save us from the President's insult!"

"Our people did not walk into America's arms for charity. They desired primarily to be drawn together in a circle of friendship."

"America is destined to carry on unfortunately in being held in abeyance through the narrowness of the American concept of the rights of other peoples. This narrowness has been brought forcibly before the minds of our people, but may the day never dawn when the inhabitants of the Virgin Islands will look on America in the same manner as do the people of Mexico and other Latin-American countries."

The C. E. thinks that maybe it should have been "Inliment" instead of "wine," considering everything.

Unless the fire department is trying to keep its members in shape and prove how fast it can get somewhere and back, we can't understand what's been bringing it out so much lately. The forest fires and such in the northern part of the state are a little too far away for the A. F. D. to be of much help, so they haven't been going up there.

Last Fall we happened to see Captain Page of the U. S. Navy, crash during the air races. Recollections like that always stick. Monday, when a playful aviator swooped to within six feet of the window, his motor roaring, we almost pushed a hand through the typewriter.

Willie the Wop comes out of hiding to make a suggestion about the Superior street "Bavine." (Yes, Tillie, the Dump.)

Says Willie, "Why doesn't the city place a sign on which would be inscribed 'The Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes in Miniature.' Then they could put up a high board fence and charge admission. In about a month we could buy a nice new incinerator from the proceeds."

Willie says his gags are copyrighted. Maybe that's an unnecessary expense.

But who are WE to judge?

LITTLE SEAMSTRESS

Who wants a seamstress eight years old,
Who piles a needle in and out
And makes her stitches neat and stout
And puts on buttons so they'll hold,
And makes of silken pinks and browns
For dolls the prettiest evening gowns?

Who wants a seamstress who can take
A bit of printed calico
And cut and fashion it and sew
And out of it pajamas make
For Teddy bears to wear about
Weekends when they're invited out?

Who wants gay coats for dogs and cats
And woolly creatures large and small?
Miss Janet here can fit them all
And dress them in the cutest hats.
She'll fashion everything they need
And all her work is guaranteed.

She threads a needle with dispatch,
Her seams are folded in beneath.
She cuts the stitch ends with her teeth!
For any seamstress she's a match!
That is, by mother I've been told,
For young just eight years old!

Personal Health Talks

Noted Physician and Author

DIATHERMY OF TONSILS IN FLU OR GRIPPE CASES

Early in February I received the following note from a physician who has had wide experience and gratifying success (according to what his patients tell me) with the diathermy extirpation of the tonsils.

Dear Doctor Brady:
I have just read your editorial . . . and I thought I would inform you about a novel experience with diathermization of the tonsils during our recent epidemic of flu.

I have had the unusual opportunity of observing a number of incipient flu cases and the effects of diathermization in cases presenting tonsillitis at the onset. I foolishly did not wear my mask at the first sittings and contracted the flu myself. I know better now. I wear a mask now.

Strange to say all the cases cleared up after a treatment or two. Perhaps this doesn't prove anything, except that such treatment does not aggravate an existing acute infection.

As nearly every one here was suffering from some "grippe" condition I made it a point to get in touch with patients who had had their tonsils diathermized in the last few months, and I found not one who had contracted the present "grippe" or "flu."

Sincerely yours,

I think we published here recently the interesting case of cure of the "carrier" state of another medical friend reported. After the diphtheria carrier had persisted in harboring virulent diphtheria bacilli (as determined by animal test) in spite of all attempts to disinfect the tonsils, the doctor finally carried his diathermy apparatus to the patient's home (the patient, of course, was not ill, but quarantined) and there electro-coagulated the tonsils. That cleared up the focus of infection and the health department lifted the quarantine.

One swallow doesn't make a summer. However, I should have a diathermy treatment or two, rather than the old Spanish custom, if I thought my tonsil harbored any kind of septic focus which might be responsible for my "rheumatism" or anything like that.

Good, scientific, conservative, twentieth century, humane, skillful and satisfactory treatment, this diathermy extirpation or electro-coagulation of the tonsils and the old timers who are still hacking them out with guillotine, scissors, snare and other crude gadgets may as well become resigned to quiet times, for the general public is mostly like to myself that way—we don't like to be hurt, we don't care to do any unnecessary bleeding, and we'd rather keep up and doing while our tonsils are being disposed of.

Children under ten years of age are out of luck so far as this modern treatment is concerned, that is, as a rule. Here and there a child is so tractable and well brought up or a doctor is so patient and skillful in dealing with children, that even a five year old youngster may be successfully treated with diathermy.

Adults and particularly those handicapped by any ailments of complication which renders them bad risks for surgery, should submit to nothing else than diathermy or electro-surgical tonsil treatment, no matter what wiles or arguments the throat surgeon may employ to discourage them. There are good doctors in nearly every town now who provide this boon for patients.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Answered Milk
We would be grateful if you will give your opinion about safe milk for babies and children. Being in the dairy business we have been furnishing safe milk for years, and many doctors have recommended our milk, but here lately the health authorities in — are crying to compel us to pasteurize it. (F. A. K.)

Answer—To pasteurize means to parboil. The process requires that the milk be heated up to 140 or 145 degrees F. Boiling temperature is around 212 degrees and blood heat is around 99 degrees, kept at that temperature 20 to 30 minutes, then cooled. This heating is sufficient to kill any tubercle bacilli, typhoid bacilli, diphtheria bacilli, streptococci of septic sore throat or scarlet fever that may happen to be in the milk. In every town or city where milk is sold to the public, there are only two grades of milk which are safe. First, certified milk, which is the purest, finest, raw milk money can buy; second, pasteurized milk, which is any milk that has been heated as described. Before the city health authorities attempt to compel milk producers or dealers to pasteurize, the city should provide a central pasteurization plant which should be conducted by the health department, and all milk offered for sale in the city (except certified milk) should be required to go through the pasteurization process under the supervision of the health department. Any other pretense of pasteurization is unreliable.

Mysteries of Diet
Why is a poached egg generally specified in a light diet prescribed by the doctor, preferably to a boiled egg? (Nurse)

Answer—Maybe the doctor lost a filling trying to masticate a boiled egg. If the patient is allowed eggs there is no good reason why his personal preference should not be consulted as to the method of cooking.

Even the Big Plans Make Funny Ones

Various opinions without helping me. Finally I went through the clinic. They told me it was not an organic trouble, just functional. . . (M. C.)

Answer—Other words, with all the machinery of the big clinic they couldn't find any definite explanation for your complaint, so they hedged, after the manner of the profession since the dark ages.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

"A W, shucks, let's journey on our way," cried Clowry. "There's no need to stay. If this place had a nice soft bed, I'd hang around all night. But since all we can do is stand, let's motor out across the land. Within the auto we will be real comfortable all right."

So back into the auto they all climbed and soon were on their way. They passed a lot of scenery that really was a sight. The Travel Man said, "Pretty soon we will arrive at old Rangoon. If we make good time from now on, that's where we'll sleep tonight."

For several hours they chugged along and not a single thing went wrong. They passed through real thick forests where the roads were rather tough. This often made them check their speed. Said Scouty, "Time is all we need. This auto's going to pull us through, although the going's tough."

And he was right. Far, far ahead they saw some smoke and Copsy said, "That must be Rangoon. Hip huray! I'm glad we're nearly there. We've made the trip and all feel well. I am so happy I could yell. Tonight I'll sleep real sound. I've grown quite drowsy from the air."

They shortly turned in for the night and every little Tynmite slept like a log till broad daylight. Then they jumped out of bed. "Hey! Hurry, lads, and all get dressed. Today you'll see some of the best sights you have seen thus far," exclaimed the friendly Travel Man.

Right after breakfast they went to a place and saw a sight quite new. A little native girl showed them a real sweet native dance. She dropped down to her knees and then swayed round and hopped right up

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—Few men in the United States senate can point to a career so colorful and so varied as that of the robust, immaculately attired senator from Nevada—Tasker Lowndes Odde.

He has discovered gold. He has been a cowpuncher. He has made millions and lost them, won them back and lost them again. He has been a soldier. He has been a farmer. He started out in the east—on the sidewalks of Brooklyn—went west as an "eastern dude" and stayed there.

And he admits that he has gotten a tremendous kick out of everything he ever tackled.

It was a frail body that determined Senator Odde's course in life. At the age 16 he was so thin and pale that his parents bundled him up and sent him west in quest of health. For three years he rode the plains of Nebraska as a cowboy, acquired a love for the west that was never to leave him.

Millions From $25
When he had put on weight and regained his health, he returned east. But the west soon lured him back.

In 1898 he went to Nevada to help manage the vast Phelps Stokes estate. His activities attracted attention. The people of Nevada fastened their eyes on the dude from the east.

Odde's quest for gold has all the marks of the well-known fiction story. A prospector had claimed a piece of land in central Nevada and decided to dig for gold. He told Odde about it and persuaded him to put a $25 grub stake.

The result was that the two opened what is now known as the famous Tonopah to have made something like ten million dollars. Then he looked on Goldfield, another site, and drew a couple of millions more.

Millions Vanish
By 1907 he was a multi-millionaire. Then came the panic of that year. It left him with nothing. Twice in his life he has gone completely broke.

Without money he started out to be elected governor of Nevada. It was pretty much of a lone fight. But he secured a battered old automobile and a few dollars and toured the state. Through deserts, over mountains he went, won the nomination and later the election.

In 1920 he came to the United States senate. A republican senator from democratic Nevada was unusual then. Many thought his election an accident.

But six years later he proved that it wasn't. He was opposed for re-election by Ray Baker, then husband of Mrs. Fred G. Vanderbilt. It was a hard fight, but Odde was successful.

Again he toured the state—this time in a limousine and with a chauffeur.

Today's Anniversary

CAPTURE OF LENS

On April 15, 1917, at between four and five in the morning, the first British troops entered Lens, their objective.

The offensive began April 9 along a front of 45 miles, having for its immediate objective Lens at the end and St. Quentin at the other. This is the struggle which has become known as the Battle of Arras, although at the end of seven days fighting, the scene shifted considerably to the east of the city which has given its name to the battle.

The occupation of Lens marked the recovery for France of the country's most valuable coal fields. At the other end of the 45 miles the British had practically won their way into the suburbs of St. Quentin, with the Germans making a stubborn last stand in the city itself.

again. When she had finished Clowry cried, "Hey, look! Now I will dance."

Seen And Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSCOCK

New York—In our town: It's curious about Corey Ford and Wolcott Gibbs, meaning the confusion of their identities.

Ford has made a reputation as a raconteur of books. He writes his glib under the pseudonym, "John Riddle." Gibbs also writes occasional parodies under his own name. One was a burlesque of Rear Admiral Byrd's account of the South Polar expedition.

Gibbs is not so well known, perhaps, as John Riddle. The latter's identity is known as far off as Iowa. Yet a middle-western paper, in its review of Gibbs's book, attributed its authorship to Ford, presuming that Gibbs was just another non de plume.

Ford and Gibbs are both young men of flesh and blood, on the staffs of different Manhattan magazines.

Continuous Performance
Wrestling is enjoying popularity hereabout and Corey Ford tells a story about a recent pachydermic contest.

The two heavyweights, Prons and Supine, were locked on the mat in true wrestling fashion. About every 15 minutes they would let go, roll over and catch holds again. After about an hour of that, a spectator got up, put on his hat and overcoat, motioned to his companion and said: "I believe this is where we came in."

Homecomers
Then there's the real story of Barbara Stanwyck and Nancy Carroll, or rather two similar stories of little girls who made good.

Miss Stanwyck's starring talkie, "Ten Cents a Dance," was shown recently in a Broadway theatre. Barbara began her Broadway career as an obscure dancer in the roof restaurant over that theatre.

And Nancy Carroll is to have the leading role in the movie "Street Scene." Nancy was a little girl on Tenth avenue, just around the corner a short piece from the Hell's Kitchen tenement house which have Elmer Rice the setting for his play. Her name then was not Carroll, but La Hiff.

Where Angels Shine
So Arthur Hammerstein is broke, or bankrupt, which usually means the same thing.

A series of flops wiped out the profits of his gold mine, "Rose Marie." It was one of the biggest money-makers of all time in show-dom. It cleared more than a million dollars for the producer.

Out of the profits he built the Hammerstein theatre. As late as last year "Rose Marie" still was earning royalties in Australia, India, China, Singapore and other theatrical outposts.

Now the theatre is to be sold at foreclosure. Somebody else's name may go up on it. All Hammerstein hopes to salvage is the bronze lobby statue of his father, the famous Oscar Hammerstein.

Earl Carroll, another producer of musical shows, has just bought a power yacht, which he plans to fit up as a houseboat.

It is producers who invest other people's money in their shows who keep solvent, as the unkept records of Broadway have demonstrated time and again. The canny producer finds a backer first.

If the old expression "in numbers there is safety" were infallible, those plates would never be given motorists.

Even if you don't win first prize in the Camel Contest . . . you can afford this Camel Hair Topcoat.

When Camels were first introduced into men's clothing . . . genuine camel hair topcoats were only for the man who liked to spend $100 to $150 for his topcoat.

Now . . . the Camels are coming down off their high horse and we are showing beautiful Camel's Hair coats at $35.

ESTELLE WON'T ALLOW DEMPSEY TO DIVORCE HER

Insists She Will File Suit Herself if Jack Is Serious

BY JESSIE HENDERSON
Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press

Hollywood—"I will never let Jack Dempsey divorce me," said Estelle Taylor the other evening. "So far I have heard nothing from him or from any other member of the Dempsey family, but if I find that Jack is serious in his intention to file suit for divorce in Reno, I shall file suit in Los Angeles. Personally, I think Jack doesn't know just what he does want."

Seated in the home-like living room of the Dempsey house in Los Angeles, Estelle Taylor looked like a woman who is gallantly taking a heavy blow. The house, she said, was full of memories and ghosts.

"I'm too good a friend of Jack's to make accusations unless I'm beaten into a corner that the instinct for self preservation comes to the fore," she continued. "Until I read it in the papers, I had heard no hint of a divorce. Our recent quarrel was no more serious than the others we've had, which means that it was trivial."

We shook hands when he left. And this isn't my idea of love; not to talk things over with me, but to let me hear first of divorce through the newspapers.

No Property Settlement
"It is not true that we ever made a property settlement. It is true, however, that Joe Dempsey, Jack's brother, borrowed from me the other night the car which Jack gave me in order to meet Jack in Reno. Borrowing my car to go to Reno to get a divorce from me is good."

"How do I feel about the whole affair? I feel more hurt and astonished than anything else. I'm too fond of Jack to feel at all bitter. For some time I'm going to be unhappy. In short I feel as if I wish I were the second cousin of the people that are mixed up in it. I'm in the middle of the thing; I can't tell which way I shall turn. You can't live for six years with a man and love him and worry about his health and his mental state and his lawsuits and then suddenly cut the thing off. I don't want to be a widow but Jack has had an average of two or three lawsuits a year ever since we were married and I always thought him in the right and always fought his battles. Tonight I feel that I ought to be helping him, fighting for him, advising."

Advisers Surround Jack?
"I imagine Jack tonight feels he's in the middle of things, too, and is wondering what he ought to do; only he is surrounded by advisers while I'm alone. Sometimes or other the sportsmanship has been in this family."

"If Jack should want a reconciliation—how do I know what I'd do? I'd find out first if he made those statements about my preferring a career to a home and family. Even if he were sorry, how do I know the electric chair without being sorry he committed a murder, but the government, while it may sympathize, does not forgive him."

Asked if she had heard rumors of an impending marriage between Dempsey and a Pittsburgh divorcee, Mrs. Dempsey said she had not. "A society woman with money?" she asked. "And without a career?"

What a break for Jack. Well, if it's true there is such a woman, I'm still a good sport."

Asked whether it would surprise her if Jack Dempsey decided to call off any plans for a divorce, Estelle Taylor replied: "Nothing would surprise me about Jack. He is a man of great variety, capacity, and energy. I won't get a divorce unless I'm forced into it."

"I don't want to battle Jack Dempsey. I'm too used to battling on his behalf."

In reply to another question she answered emphatically: "There has never been a quarrel about a woman in this house." And in reply to Dempsey's mean from Reno that Estelle had not written him a letter in two years, she remarked: "Perhaps I haven't. But that's because Jack never before left me for even 24 hours without calling me up on the telephone." She added it is not true that she ever asked Jack Dempsey to get a divorce.

Who's Who On The Appleton Post-Crescent

(This is the thirty-third of a series of articles about members of the staff of the Appleton Post-Crescent. The articles will seek to acquaint readers of this newspaper with those persons as individuals and also will discuss the nature of their work. Members of the staff are presented in the order of their length of service. The thirty-fourth article will appear tomorrow.)

The sweetly courteous voice that answers your telephone appeal to rent your house, sell your radio, find a paper-hanger or a handy man, belongs to Miss Ruth Ashman, advertiser at the Post-Crescent.

Miss Ashman is one of the few persons who has a telephone personality that does not grow weary with the day's work. She takes on an average of 60 classified ads every day, most of them by telephone. Her work involves checking addresses, telephone numbers, names of advertisers, preparation of ads and she sees that they are properly printed.

Miss Ashman was born in Shawano. She attended school in her native town and in Appleton. She graduated from Appleton high school. Saleswork in a local department store was the first job Miss Ashman ever had. When she came to the Post-Crescent in 1924, Miss Ashman began as a telephone operator. She transferred to the circulation department for six months, and for the last two and one-half years has been in charge of the details of the classified department.

Bowling is one of Miss Ashman's special diversions. She is the captain of the D. G. S. women's team at the Elks' club and has been a member of a city team for several years. In 1929, with Miss Ashman captain, this city team won a place in the women's state tournament in Oshkosh. Miss Ashman is very fond of dancing and she enjoys reading and playing bridge.

Mumps Appear In Spring And Remain Until Summer

Madison—Reports from several cities in Wisconsin indicate that mumps is unusually prevalent at present. Spring is the season in which it has obtained a foothold no great decline can be expected before summer weather, according to the bulletin issued by the State Medical Society today. It is pointed out that the disease is especially prevalent in Southern Wisconsin and in some districts has spread rapidly.

The symptoms of mumps are commonly known to most people. It is an infection of the parotid gland and characterized by a boggy swelling without redness just in front of and below the ear. The swelling is much more extensive in some individuals than in others. One side of the face only may be involved but usually a similar swelling appears on the opposite side within two or three days' time. Usually some fever, aching, headache and occasionally vomiting and earache precede or accompany the malady.

Complications Seen
"Many parents consider that mumps mean only a short period of inconvenience to the child," declares

the State Medical Society's Bulletin issued today. "Fortunately, in the majority of cases, this will prove true but there are some, however, who develop complications and experience serious illness. The chief of these complications is the invasion of other glands in other parts of the body in both the male and female sex and this occasionally results in permanent damage. The person suffering from mumps, therefore, even if lightly affected, should have adequate treatment. Rest in bed for a number of days, especially in adolescents and young adults, greatly lessens the chance of these complications. The appearance of any kind of unusual symptom urgently demands medical attention."

The spread of mumps through the population takes place through the transference of the secretions of the mouth and nose of those ill with the trouble or coming down with it. The infective agent is most virile in the early stages of the disease and is present in these secretions as long as there is any swelling of the face. Secondary parties, such as nurses or parents, who have themselves been exposed to a case, rarely if ever, give the contagion to others. Direct exposure to the patient, is therefore, responsible for the spread of the infection. Mumps is not borne to others through the air.

"The rules of the State Board of Health require isolation of the patient for two weeks and until one week after the swelling. The child who has been exposed to mumps should be kept home at the first sign of illness in order not to expose others, and any school children when the disease is present in the school should be promptly excluded by the teacher on the first sign of any illness. Only about seventy percent of persons ever develop mumps. The fact that thirty per cent escape indicates that isolation, of the patient and other proper precautions have some value."

Children born on this April 15th will be over-sanguine and will always want, both mentally and physically, to bite off more than they can chew. Without curbing mercurial ambition, there must be forced on them a proper sense of perspective. Their dispositions will be naturally affectionate and impulsive.

Born on April 16th, your talents are diversified and you have ability in several directions. Your head is a long one and your vision is exceptionally keen. You possess, too, some psychic gift, as you can invariably foresee the epilogue, after only witnessing the prologue. Your nature is a kindly one, and you do everything in your power to spare the feelings of others. Sometimes you go too far in this direction.

You are well-liked, and your one weakness is your susceptibility to flattery—which is unctious to your soul. Force, with you, can accomplish nothing. A few well chosen encomiums of praise—even though they are not entirely merited—will influence you to an unconscionable degree. If you would only allow your own judgment to prevail, instead of allowing yourself to be moved by the wiles of others, your success would be pronounced and enduring. You evince a lively interest in mental and scientific problems, and the gratification of these tastes is your hobby; if, by adverse fate, they are not your vocation. You should cultivate more personality, and endeavor to reflect in conversation more of what you really are, and what you stand for. Your home life will be characterized by harmony of feeling and felicity of understanding.

INVITE MOTHERS TO UNIVERSITY FOR THREE DAYS

Expect Several Hundred Women Will Attend Annual Event

Madison—(P)—Offered the opportunity of gaining a first-hand experience of college life from the class room to its social end, several hundred mothers of University of Wisconsin students will gather here May 22, 23 and 24 for the annual Mothers' Weekend. Miss Louise Wagner, daughter of a professor and a student in the university, is chairman of the event.

Miss Wagner, under whose several dozen students are functioning in planning the weekend, says the entertainment this year will concentrate on "student atmosphere." To insure success to the project, she has pledged from Harefoot Club, all-man show organization, that it will put on several skits; the Men's glee club, which has promised a program, and Orchestral, women's dancing group, which is to give an evening performance. In addition to the student program, a dinner to honor the visiting mothers and a reception by President and Mrs. Glenn Frank are being arranged.

Senior swingout, the coed's farewell to her undergraduate days, is to be held May 23 while Madison pastors have pledged sermons in honor of "mother" for May 24.

The chief sub-committee under Miss Wagner is composed of Alexander Cannon, Milwaukee; Dorothy Fuller, Milwaukee; Barbara Critchell, Chicago, and Jenkin L. Jones, Tulsa, Okla.

The reception plans are in charge of Betty Brown, Tulsa, Okla., and Walter Graebner, Wausau. Arthur Wadsworth, Ft. Thomas, Ky., and Katherine Ehrler, Milwaukee, will supervise the dinner party, while Helen Cole, Atlantic, Ia., is in charge of invitations.

Special features are being directed by Mary Standing, Marion, Wis., and Jean Powers, Battle Creek, Mich., will edit the official program. Duncan Jennings, Wilmette, Ill., is in charge of financing.

Publicity for the weekend is being handled by Fritz Stenge, Tomahawk, who has as his assistants, John Reynolds, Winnetka, Ill., Fritz Bolander, Monroe, and Gretchen Zierath, Sheboygan.

BRIGHT INSURANCE OUTLOOK REPORTED

Prospects for Second Quarter More Encouraging Than in Year

BY ROLLIN M. CLARK
Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press
Washington—(CPA)—Life insurance prospects for the second quarter of 1931 are more encouraging than they have been for a year. During the first six weeks of the current year there was a slump in sales of new business, but the last six weeks showed an improvement which leaders of the business confidently expect will continue as the depression gradually wears off.

Col. C. B. Robbins, president of the American Life convention, an organization of nearly 150 legal reserve life insurance companies, declared that he is not looking for any sensational production records in the next quarter, but he does anticipate an excellent showing in both new business written and, especially, in business paid for.

While new sales during the first three months of 1931 were somewhat below those of the same period in 1930, it should be borne in mind that life insurance production reached record heights in the first quarter of last year. Paradoxically, this was due to some extent to the stock market crash.

West leads the Jack of Hearts and Declarer takes the trick with the Queen. A small Diamond is led and taken with the King in Dummy. The eight of Diamonds is returned and the Ace and Queen taken successively in Declarer's hand. On the third round of Diamonds, West must discard. Since there are three Hearts left in Dummy, he cannot discard a Heart but must discard a Spade. Declarer leads his remaining small Heart and takes it with the King in Dummy. East can safely discard a Spade on this trick but when the Ace of Hearts is led he must either discard another Spade or his last Diamond. Since he knows that South holds the Diamond, he chooses the Spade. South then discards his Diamond, leads to the King and another Spade from Dummy, taking the last two tricks in his own hand.

large numbers as a means of recreating their estates at once. Much of this business, however, has not remained on the books of the companies. Col. Robbins pointed out.

New insurance sold thus far in 1931 is expected to show a much lower lapse ratio than last year's new business. It has probably been harder to sell but it is more likely to "stick." Thus, as Col. Robbins put it, the first quarter of 1931 was in many respects the best that the life insurance industry has ever experienced.

Mrs. Carl Griem, 208 E. College-ave, entertained members of her riding club at dinner and bridge Monday evening.

YOUNG PEOPLE FROM CHURCH REHEARSE PLAY

Almost all of the young people who are taking part in the play, "Peg, O' My Heart," which will be presented April 21 at St. Joseph hall are experienced actors and actresses, having taken part in numerous productions of the St. Joseph Players and Young Ladies sodality in the past. Miss Cecile Haag, who plays the part of Peg, has taken leading roles in amateur dramatics in Appleton for several years. John Rossmel, who plays the part of John Alexander, took an important part in "Her Husband's Wife" which was put on last year, and in the last production, "Father Walks Out."

Miss Marie Dohr appeared in these two plays and also in "Sliding." Maurice Roemer, Joseph Grossberger, Caroline Maurer, and Helen Rechner have all played in previous performances at St. Joseph's.

Two newcomers to the St. Joseph stage are Edward Vollmer, who plays the part of Mr. Hawkes, the solicitor, and Cyril Theiss, who will take the role of the butler.

Wisconsin Weather. Partly cloudy in west; showers in east portion tonight or Thursday; slightly warmer tonight in east; cooler in extreme west central portion; cooler Thursday in southwest.

General Weather. High pressure which is centered this morning over Lake Huron has brought continued fair weather to the lake region and the northeastern states. A trough of low pressure extending from central Canada to Arizona has caused light general showers in the western plains states and upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys, with thunderstorms reported from scattered stations in those sections. Generally fair weather prevails from the Rocky mountains west, due to high pressure which is moving in over the north Pacific coast this morning. Showers and possibly thunderstorms are expected in this section tonight or Thursday, with slightly warmer tonight.

It Is Said--

That Appleton anglers have only 404 hours to wait before the opening of the trout fishing season on May 1. Homer H. Bowby, who is probably one of the most ardent followers of the sport says he has only 380 more hours to wait, because he's going up to his "summer sanatorium" a day ahead of time.

That the wreck of the old flyover by a train on College-ave several nights ago was as good as a cinema comedy. The fenders were torn off, the wheels rolled away, and the motor dropped into the middle of the street. The premeditated dissembling of a car for film purposes couldn't have been done in better style.

Gust Zuehlke own the schafkopf prize and Mrs. Louis Lohman won the prize at bridge.

Mrs. Carl Griem, 208 E. College-ave, entertained members of her riding club at dinner and bridge Monday evening.

First Child Should Not Be Neglected

BY ANGELO PATRI
"Do like your mother, as clearly as she can with a mouthful of safety pins and her hands full of wiggling baby. 'Of course I do. Don't ask such silly questions. There, there, my lamb, quiet now. Mother's darling, quiet now. John Alexander, pick up those things of yours and try to step quietly so your little baby brother can rest. There, there now, mother's little lamb."

John Alexander, just two, lately the one and only child of the household, lately the prince of the blood royal, now outcast and displaced figure and his spirits fall to the bottom of the pot. Forasmuch, bereft, unloved in a friendless world he shakes a tiny fist, kicks a couple of blocks across the floor and sinks into a rumpled heap on the rug to cry out his loneliness and resentment.

"Why, John Alexander, what is the matter? Are you sick? Get up your nap today. Dear me, when you know mother is busy with the baby can't you go and take your own nap? And your face is all streaked and dirty—and you haven't picked up a thing. Really, you are getting to be the worst child. Now with all I have to do for your baby brother I have to stop and attend to you. Come along to the bathroom. I'll see if I can make you presentable. Goodness—with all—"

Now consider. You see what all John Alexander? "Do you like me mother?" he asks as the washrag ruthlessly scours his baby face. "Do you like me, Mother?"

"Now for goodness sake, John Alexander, don't ask me that again. You know I like you."

"Really and truly, Mother, really and truly?"

"Why of course, John. Have you been worrying about that? Don't you know that mother loves you more than anything else in the world?"

"Really and truly, mother? As much as you love the baby?"

"Why, John Alexander, I declare you are jealous of your little brother. Aren't you ashamed of yourself?"

"But do you love me, mother? Really and truly, mother?"

"Yes, John Alexander, mother loves you really and truly. She will always love you. No matter how many baby brothers come you will be as dear to mother as you always have been. You will be mother's first boy. Don't you know that?"

"Now I'll tell you what we'll do. We'll pick up those things on the floor, and then we'll have a cambric tea together, before the baby wakes up. Eh? And when, when he does wake up, you'll come along and help me with him, won't you? He's such a baby yet. When he gets a bit bigger, and you can teach him all you know, we can have more time together. Now let's hurry up and get that tea of ours. There's a cookie on the blue plate."

It is hard for the first one, you know. In your own hurry and distress, remember him, really and truly.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, including stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Royalty Galore Visiting United States This Month

New York—(AP)—Highness is here; majesty is coming; America is meeting royalty.

Their imperial highnesses, Prince and Princess Takamatsu of Japan arrived last Friday and received warm and official welcomes.

His royal highness, Prince Charles of Belgium arrived incognito yesterday as Charles de Rethy.

Their royal majesties the king and queen of Siam will arrive in Vancouver Friday or Saturday and come to New York by April 22.

Takamatsu and his bride are honeymooning. She is Kikuku, grand daughter of the last of the shoguns. He is the younger brother of Emperor Hirohito. A month in America, including an excursion into Canada, will be the last lap of a trip around the world which began after their marriage a year ago.

Charles is the second son of King Albert of Belgium. He is 27 years old, a bachelor. He wanted to tour America without being known. In Washington he will be the guest of Count Francois de Bussiere of the Belgian embassy, who crossed the ocean with him.

King Pradjadhipok of Siam, is coming for an eye-operation. He and his queen will reside at the country home of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid in Westchester-co, New York. Dr. John M. Wheeler, head of the optical department of the Presbyterian hospital, will perform the operation.

The king's grandfather was King Mongkut, who began an era of modernization and progress in Siam. The family has reigned since 1782.

The Siamese king and queen, the Japanese prince and Princess are technically incognito in that their visits are not official. Charles hoped to be actually incognito. Defeated in that, he may find himself the cynosure of Washington society.

The Story of Sue

MARGERY HALE
© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

"A NOTHER death? Who pulled that stunt?" Donald Payne asked Jack. "Natural or accidental, or—premeditated murder?"

"Some of all three, Sybil Lester's father heard Redding testifying in his room at the hospital.... there in time to try to prevent his signature from going on a paper or two.... and ended by giving him a sock that would have knocked out a well man. You can tell what it did to Redding."

"Killed him?" Sue asked, more to get the force of the words registered in her own mind than for an answer. "Made him more excited, brought on another hemorrhage. He's done for now. It will be rather queer, though, carrying on a prosecution with the main witness giving his testimony some place beyond the grave."

"A ghostly communication, you might call it," Donald Payne replied. "Too bad the poor cuss had to shuffle off, but I guess it didn't inconvenience him much. He might as well be dead now as in three months."

"What will happen to Mr. Lester?" Sue asked quietly. She couldn't feel very sorry for the stern-faced executive whose eyes were always proud and a little cold when people came from simple environments.

"Oh, nothing. What could they do? After all, the man was ill, anyway, and Lester thought he was protecting his daughter," Donald Payne answered.

"Yes, but if my father had struck at anyone for making such an accusation about me, he would have had to face the penalty! I'm going to swear out a warrant for his arrest if nobody else will!" Sue stood up very slender and straight, with her dark blue eyes flashing colored fire and her firm red lips drawn into a thin tight line.

Jack slipped a reassuring arm around her. "He'll have his punishment when his daughter's case comes before the public. That will take care of him, Sue. You don't want to have him arrested?"

"But that m-n who died.... Jim Redding.... belonged to somebody," Sue said. "He has a mother, or a sister, or maybe there's a girl somewhere. It isn't fair for him to be stuffed into a Potter's field."

"You're right about that," Jack answered. "But the bank will get in touch with them. And now as to that warrant...."

Sue wilted suddenly, the blue eyes no longer flashing, the red lips trembling. "Jack, I'm afraid that somehow Sybil will still slip out. That's why I want to hold on to her father. Of course, nothing can be done to him, I suppose. But can't he be made to think that it can be?"

"Here he is now," Jack replied quietly. Mr. Lester had come into the jail and approached the main desk. The chief of police was leaning across the desk, talking to him.

"You gave that scoundrel what he deserved, Lester. Any cad who would frame a man and then lay it on a girl! Well, we know where the blame rests now. I always did think Merryman was the victim of somebody's plot. I'm sorry that this has inconvenienced your daughter."

"Let's get out," Jack whispered to Sue, and didn't talk again until they were in his car. Then he spoke more at will.

"They know Sybil's guilty. But since Redding died they have a loophole to free her. And if she goes free she's dangerous. But there's the automobile testimony.... the hidden taxicab; her own queer actions. We're freed your father. What should we do about Sybil? Drop it?"

Save leftover cake crumbs for boiled custard. This is a good dessert for a child's lunch. Crumbled macaroons can be used same day. Bits of stale sponge or angel food cake can be used to line cups into which boiled custard is poured. When chilled, this is a tempting dessert.

To keep a soapstone sink looking nice and dark, wipe over it with linseed oil.

To wash a jersey dress successfully have plenty of good warm suds, not too hot, made from any good soap flakes and let dress soak in this for a while but not until water is cold. Then squeeze it out.

Perhaps you'd like a youthful caplet one sees on so many of the smart frocks these days.

However be certain choose the right caplet. This one is a beauty and suited to miss or matron. Fastening at the front as it does with a button, gives it a sportive air. Its scalloped bound edge furnishes a lovely theme for contrast. The buttoned belt and circular hem smartly agree with the scalloped edge. The neckline also favors scallops to narrow its breadth.

The frock was originally carried out in pale blue eyelet batiste with blue binding.

Style No. 3050 may be had in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36 and 38 inches bust.

REST, EXERCISE ARE ESSENTIAL TO REAL BEAUTY

BY ALICIA HART

Spring is the time of year to shed all your testy-temperatures. If you have a couple of chips on your shoulder all the time, you are doing mean things to your facial expression, not to mention to your bodily tension.

All earth is bursting with beauty, sunshine and happiness, right now. Of course the plants have had a long, gorgeous rest and most of the humans I know have had a hard winter. But you owe it to yourself to get in rhythm with the surge of spring happiness.

Plenty of rest is essential. But so is exercise. If you want to freshen up. And first and foremost, good, easy but persistent exercises that will limber up your body, strengthen your abdominal muscles and help you to hold yourself up to go meet spring with a smile.

There are some easy morning and evening exercises, to be taken five at a time for a few days, then 10 straight running.

Lie on the floor and after stretching, doing a few bicycle exercises and trying to touch the floor over your head, do the following:

1. Stretch yourself out full length and hook your feet under a dresser, library table or something that you can't raise from the floor with your toes. Then, keeping your toes under this object, with your arms folded on your chest and the knees straight, raise your body slowly, almost to sitting position, and slowly lie down again. If you hop up quickly, the abdominal stretch is lost. Do the whole thing slowly and by not entirely sitting erect, you get twice the exercise.

2. Lie on one side and do what is known as the scissors kick. It consists of snapping the legs in opposite direction while resting the weight of the body on first the right hip and then on the left.

3. Sit up on your heels and with your arms outstretched even with your shoulders, try the good old Russian dance step which consists in poising the weight on one leg while you stretch the other out in a step, shift weight and dance on the other.

This gives you a rounded limbering up, aids the body in eliminating waste and if taken with some degree of consciousness, will do a lot to ease your temper. Do them all a few days, morning and night, and then look yourself in the face. Don't you look just a little pleasanter? Well, that's one good long step towards beauty.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

BROKEN-HEARTED GIRL writes as unhappy a letter as can be imagined and, indeed, her trouble is an acute one. But if she could only realize how lucky she is compared to older and sadder women she would perhaps be faintly cheered.

She is young and her husband is a good deal older than herself.

NEW MEDICINE CABINET SIZE THE IDEAL FAMILY LAXATIVE

Effective in Milder Doses Insist on the Genuine
Feen-a-mint
FOR CONSTIPATION

Since their marriage, his attitude has puzzled her more and more. Indifference, neglect, even rudeness, together with an utter carelessness and lack of responsibility about money and affairs of the home, have contributed to make her an utterly wretched young wife.

In the year and one half of her marriage she has seldom known sweetness or kindness from him. He is constantly out in the evenings, he shows his repugnance for any form of affection from her and he seems literally to be unaware of the fact that it is up to him to support her.

She has given him what little money she had when she married and he has spent that—but not on her. There are rumors that he has found someone else. She will not believe them, yet she feels there must be something to account for his strange behavior.

Here's a man who is starting out as so many other careless, selfish men who find that marriage is after all, not an interesting experiment but a real responsibility. He gets over the novelty of the situation and discovers that his wife is rather a bore. He's used to enjoying life, and so he intends to go on enjoying it, wife or no wife. Because he happens to have chosen a sweet-tempered girl, he takes advantage of her good-nature. Her reticence on the subject of money makes it possible for him to be a thoughtless about money matters. And so he goes his way carefree, occasionally kind to the woman he married, but certainly never anything that a good husband should be.

BROKEN-HEARTED girl has found out all these unpleasant facts, within the first two years of her married life, and in that she is lucky. Other women discover gradually that they're married to men who are not made to be decent good husbands to any women—and by the time they understand fully how hopeless their position is, they're saddled with children and other responsibilities, and their lives are no longer their own to dispose of as they see fit.

There is no earthly use in dragging out your life with a man such as has been described above. If he behaves in this callous indifferent fashion while his wife is young and pretty, he can hardly be expected to turn over a new leaf, and behave himself as the two grow old together. He simply isn't the marrying kind, and he's much better off alone.

Sometimes it is advisable for the young wife to wait and give her rather indifferent husband a chance to adjust himself to his new life—but in this case, your letter shows that your husband hasn't the faintest intention of adjusting himself to anything which doesn't please him. And you, who are so eager for love, and a really happy life, can certainly never adjust yourself to the sort of existence he apparently thinks you ought to lead. Therefore it would seem wiser to end this unhappy affair as soon as possible, in order to give yourself a chance for happiness before it is too late.

NEW ORDINANCE ON TRAFFIC IS PASSED IN CITY

Revised and Codified Measure Ordered Published by Council

Menasha—A revised and codified traffic ordinance, outlining rules and restrictions for vehicular activity in the city, was adopted by the common council at an adjourned meeting Tuesday. The new ordinance, codified under the direction of M. F. Crowley, city attorney, and confined to 48 pages, was read, accepted, and ordered published by a unanimous vote.

Powers of city police, street committee, and city engineer were outlined, and a speed limit of 15 miles per hour through the business district, and 25 miles an hour through the residential district was established. The code outlines requirements for lighting, requirements on all vehicles, limitations on vehicular size and weight, and lists exceptions for emergency vehicles and farm implements. The rights of the pedestrian, rules against jay walking, hooking bicycles and similar devices to moving vehicles, and loitering in the roadway were clarified.

Establish Penalties

Penalties including revocation of drivers' licenses for drunken driving, gross negligence, or hit and run tactics were established, and rules prohibiting one arm driving, vehicular races or contests on the highways, and unnecessary noise and smoke were outlined.

Further rules on all vehicular traffic in the city were included, but definite streets to be classified as arterials will be outlined in subsequent ordinances, it was revealed. Similar actions must be taken on streets in which either angle or parallel parking is allowed.

E. F. Dornbrook, who submitted a bid of $812, was awarded the contract to construct a bridge tender's tower at the Mill-st bridge. Dornbrook's bid quoted the lowest price of five proposals.

Build Tower Soon

The original structure was destroyed by fire several weeks ago, but the first set of bids, submitted to the council March 31, were rejected. Construction of the tower will begin within a few days, it is expected.

Municipal officers, named by the voters at the polls Tuesday, were officially declared elected after a canvass of the votes by an election committee Tuesday evening. The committee, named by Mayor N. G. Rammel, consisted of Aldermen Heckrodt, Kelley and Sengenbrenner. The city clerk was authorized to send official notification to those elected, and new aldermanic officers will assume their positions in the council at the meeting of April 21.

That the Mill-st bridge be cleaned and painted, under the direction of the bridge committee, the poor committee, and the superintendent of streets, was moved by Alderman Small. Peter Kassel, street superintendent, was asked for an opinion on the possibility of cleaning the iron work by hand, and following his statement that nearly all the work could be done in that manner, the council authorized the board of public works to purchase the paint necessary to complete the work.

Will Paint Bridge

Cleaning and painting the bridge will serve a dual purpose by completing the repair work on the structure, and giving employment to a number of workers forced to seek city aid at present, it was pointed out.

Because indications pointed toward insufficient housing accommodations for student players in Menasha during the state high school band convention, May 15 and 16, Alderman McGilligan suggested that a committee be appointed to secure army cots for use in the large auditorium available for tournament use. The committee, appointed by Mayor Rammel and consisting of Aldermen McGilligan, Heckrodt, and Small, will communicate with Governor LaFollette, relative to the securing of military cots.

An application of the Interstate Transfer Line, Omaha, Neb., for motor vehicle licenses to operate through Menasha on a branch line from Chicago to Minneapolis was referred to the finance committee and the city attorney.

Two Petition Walk Petitions

Two petitions from property owners urging construction of concrete sidewalks on Lincoln and Jefferson streets between Appleton and Manitowish, and on the north side of Jefferson, west of DePere street, were read and referred by Mayor Rammel to the street committee. Anton Eshofski was named cemetery caretaker.

The March report of the poor committee revealed a total expenditure of $1,075.40, with $283.44 classified as outside aid. The personal property assessment on the Menasha Hardware company was reduced by acceptance of a petition to the council. The report of the judiciary committee for February and March revealed court fines totalling $135, and police fees of $6.30.

Following a report by Alderman Sengenbrenner, indicating that the police department motorcycle needs extensive repair or replacement, the council moved to advertise for bids on a new machine. Bids are returnable April 28.

CAMP FIRE TROOP PLANS ROLLER SKATING PARTY

Menasha—Menasha camp fire girls will hold a roller skating party near the city park Saturday afternoon. Under the direction of Miss J. J. Martin, the troop will meet at the Memorial building, and return for refreshments later in the day. No other meeting will be held this week, according to Mae Belle Gear, troop guardian.

RESCH HAS LEADING ROLE IN COMEDY

Menasha—Joseph Resch, will assume the leading role in "All Night Long," a three-act comedy.

Resch will appear as Mr. Smith; Anthony Thielens as Ted Blake, Bertil Finch as Mr. Monroe; M. Schommer as Mr. Wofford; John Robson as Mr. Vandervetter; Elliot W. Warrin as Mr. Officer; Rose Marie Vandervetter as Miss Vandervetter; Aurea Rippl as Mrs. Smith; and Margaret Sherrin as Mrs. Monroe.

RIPPLE GROCERS TOP BOWLING LOOP

EDITOR FEARS OF ATTEMPT AT STATE GAG RULE

Chapple Scores Bill 52a, Up for Committee Hearing Today

Madison —(AP)—Charges that an attempt had been made to "gag" John B. Chapple, Ashland, when he appeared to protest an assembly bill, are not founded on fact, the assembly judiciary committee said in a resolution adopted yesterday.

Ashland —(AP)—John B. Chapple, managing editor of the Ashland Daily Press, whose editorial comment resulted in an investigation by the assembly judiciary committee, issued following statement and went to the senate judiciary committee which will consider today a measure Mr. Chapple says is "an attempt to establish state-wide gag rule of Wisconsin industry."

The Chapple statement, issued Tuesday, said: "The repeated efforts to gag me at Madison are in my opinion just the forerunner of an attempt to establish a state-wide gag rule for industrial organization in Wisconsin. What happened to me was in my opinion just an incident in the most ambitious scheme to set up state socialism upon the wreckage of private industry that has yet been attempted."

The gag has been seized upon as a weapon by a handful of state ownership schemers who hope to set themselves up as the political industrial tyrants of Wisconsin.

"A measure to prohibit opposition by the industries of Wisconsin to the program of state ownership has already actually been passed by the assembly and is up for hearing Wednesday before the senate judiciary committee. This measure, embodied in a bill purporting to amend the corrupt practices act, creates a new offense which would make it a violation of law punishable by extreme penalties for any Wisconsin industry to influence legislation of any kind, or to promote the candidacy of any person for nomination, appointment or election to any political office, or in support of or opposition to any constitutional amendment, legislative measure or other question submitted to a referendum vote of the people's no matter if these proposed measures would deprive it of its property."

"Thus industries would be rendered helpless to defend themselves from what I insist is a program of political racketeering."

"The language quoted above is from bill 52a introduced by Assemblyman J. V. Carow, who is the same man who, while acting as temporary chairman of the judiciary committee, made repeated efforts to apply the gag to me when I was testifying before that committee on March 20."

"Carow and some other members of that committee on that occasion tried to gag me both as a citizen and an editor. I believe, because I spoke and wrote in opposition to their attack upon private property, upon individual property rights and upon the liberties of every Wisconsin citizen."

"Why are they trying desperately to stifle criticism of their program? They don't dare to let the people of Wisconsin understand the path that they are taking and the goal that they seek."

Jobs Unsafe, Claims
"Even a man's job is not safe if their attacks on private industry succeed. Industries which made a move in opposition to their program might even be required by the courts to dissolve, liquidate and go out of business."

"What two legislative committees and the speaker of the assembly did to me indicates to me a well-defined determination to gag opposition to their political attack upon private property. Their will to make any Wisconsin industry which opposed their state ownership face extreme penalties confirms me in this belief."

"I am certain that thousands within the ranks of the party which these men profess to lead will be agitated when they realize fully the dangers of the political schemes that have been mapped out as evidenced by measures now pending at Madison. What happened to me was just one incident. Their program calls for a state-wide gag for every industrial organization in Wisconsin. They know that if both sides of this question are known, their insidious attack upon private property and personal rights will be repudiated as dangerous to the economic future of Wisconsin, as well as being un-American in principle."

DRY LAW ISSUE CONTINUES TO AROUSE DEBATE

Prohibition Keeps in Limelight Despite Other
Big Problems

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1931 by Post Pub. Co.
Washington —(CPA)—Although the government has all sorts of problems on its hands, prohibition continues to interest itself constantly in the life of the capital.

This week especially we separate groups of women are meeting here—the women's Democratic Law Enforcement League led by women who bolted the ticket in 1923 and voted for Herbert Hoover, and the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform led by Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, former Republican national committeewoman from New York state.

The dry group insisted that they would bolt the ticket again if a wet were nominated. They called on Mr. Hoover. The wets, however, are not planning to do likewise because they don't want to embarrass the president.

Meanwhile the government has acted again through the director of prohibition, Colonel Woodcock, to indicate that it is not at all in sympathy with the sale of fruit juices even though it may be technically legal.

Hard to Prove Intent

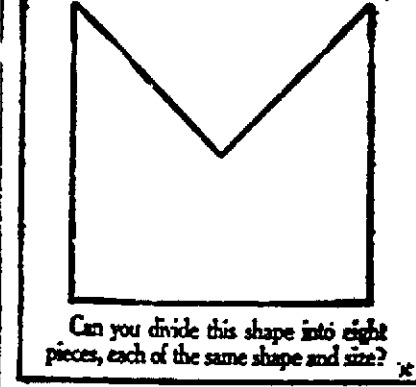

Mr. Woodcock argues that it is difficult to prove intent when fruit juices are sold. While he does not intend to recommend any change in the expectation that it will develop 12 to 20 per cent of alcohol is not "in keeping with the spirit of the eighteenth amendment."

Mr. Woodcock is of course expressing the viewpoint of the administration on this perplexing question and he has made it clear that if fruit juices are advertised and sold with an intent that they be used in the manufacture of a beverage which is intoxicating in fact "then such advertisement and sale are unlawful."

He admits, however, that intent is almost impossible to prove.

ALLEGED LOVE RING IS FOUND IN CHICAGO

Chicago —(AP)—Two women were held today by investigators at the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office as the alleged heads of a "love" ring which procured young "party girls" for wealthy and influential men.

The arrests followed a raid upon a north side apartment in which a book containing more than 200 names of patrons. Most of them, Sergt. Michael Ahern who conducted the raid said, will be questioned.

The women held identified themselves as Baroness Katherine Kuhlwindt, 50, who claims her title is genuine, and Mrs. Jane Stanton, 45. The baroness, Ahern said, has been operating the "love agency" from her apartment for the last six years. Mrs. Stanton said she had been aiding the baroness for only two weeks.

Authorities said they believed several men were partners of the baroness.

LARGER CHURCH ATTENDANCE

Chicago —(AP)—Churches of the Illinois conference of the Augustana synod of Lutheran churches, which includes five states, have enjoyed an increased church attendance, the annual report of Dr. Peter Peterson, president, revealed today. He also pointed out that the average yearly salary for pastors in the conference was $2,320.

Sturgeon Bay —(AP)—At a municipal referendum election yesterday, voters approved a $100,000 school bond issue to fireproof the high school building and to construct an addition to it.

He contends that the eighteenth amendment is right in theory but that some well thought out plan as a substitute for existing conditions was essential.

Scarcely a day passes the some activity in the prohibition controversy isn't reported. The subject is of course intertwined in politics and former Senator Reed of Missouri, who is here this week, is attacking the tactics of Chairman Raskob of the Democratic national committee in endeavoring to make the question a party issue. Wets and dries are aggressively conducting their fight so that irrespective of what the parties may do about it the subject is being kept prominently before the people.

Yankees, Macks, Cubs, Cards Win Opening Baseball Games

250,000 FANS SEE OPENERS; RUTH HOMERS

Washington Subdued by Athletics, 5 and 3 in Eleven Innings

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR., Associated Press Sports Writer

WITH all the fanfare that usually accompanies the start of a new baseball year, the major leagues have launched what promises to be a highly successful season.

The size of the opening day crowds, which filled eight ball parks with nearly 250,000 fans, and the quality of the first game performances combined to promise great things for future days between now and September. All around the two circuits, the teams that have been picked to finish in the first division performed well enough to justify the predictions while the others showed that they may become contenders. A number of the recruits, particularly on the weaker teams, shone in the opening games.

A's Nats in Duel

In no case was the margin of victory more than four runs while one game which brought together two of the prospective pennant contenders was carried into extra innings. The Philadelphia Athletics, the world champions, defeated the Washington Senators, who finished second to the A's in the American league last year, 5 to 3, in an eleven-innings battle. The A's tied the count in the ninth just about the time President Hoover left the scene, then bunched his off. Al Crowder in the eleventh to win. For the most part the game was a mound duel between Rube Walberg of Philadelphia and Lloyd Brown of Washington.

Three other good pitching performances turned up in the American league. Before a crowd of 70,000, Charley Ruffing of the New York Yankees held the Boston Red Sox to a check to gain a 3 to 2 victory. Babe Ruth added to the festivities by hitting his first home run of the new season while Winsett made a pinch homer for Boston. Wesley Ferrell started out to beat last year's mark of 25 victories for Cleveland as his mates hit well behind him to beat the Chicago White Sox 5 to 4. Walter Stewart of St. Louis limited the rebuffed Detroit Tigers to six hits while the Browns doubled that number to win 7-3.

Root Gives Cubs Win

Charles Root, ace of the Chicago Cubs, turned in the National league's best hurling performance as he allowed the Pittsburgh pirates only four blows while gaining a 6 to 2 triumph. Homer by Gabby Hartnett also helped entertain the 45,000 fans of the National league's biggest crowd.

The champion St. Louis Cardinals, now just one of the teams battling for the flag, found trouble with Larry Benton's pitching in the early innings but came with a rush at the finish and defeated Cincinnati 7 to 3. The New York Giants and Philadelphia quickly found the range of the right field wall at Baker bowl, Philadelphia, and slammed out four homers, three in that direction. Chuck Klein walloped two in succession but could not keep his team ahead as a big seventh inning gave the Giants a 5 to 1 victory.

CANADIAN SEXTET KEEPS HOCKEY CUP

Les Canadiens Defeat Blackhawks in Final Game of Title Series

Montreal—(AP)—For the fifth time in its long and varied history as emblem of hockey supremacy, the Stanley Cup has come to the possession of Les Canadiens of Montreal. The flying Frenchmen, who last year brought the world's championship trophy back from the United States, retained their title and the cup last night as they defeated the Chicago Blackhawks 2 to 0 in the fifth and final game of their championship series.

The colorful Canadiens first won the cup in 1923. It was presented as an amateur trophy by Lord Stanley of Preston. This was long before the National hockey league was formed in 1916. They captured it again in 1919 and in 1924 before last year's triumph.

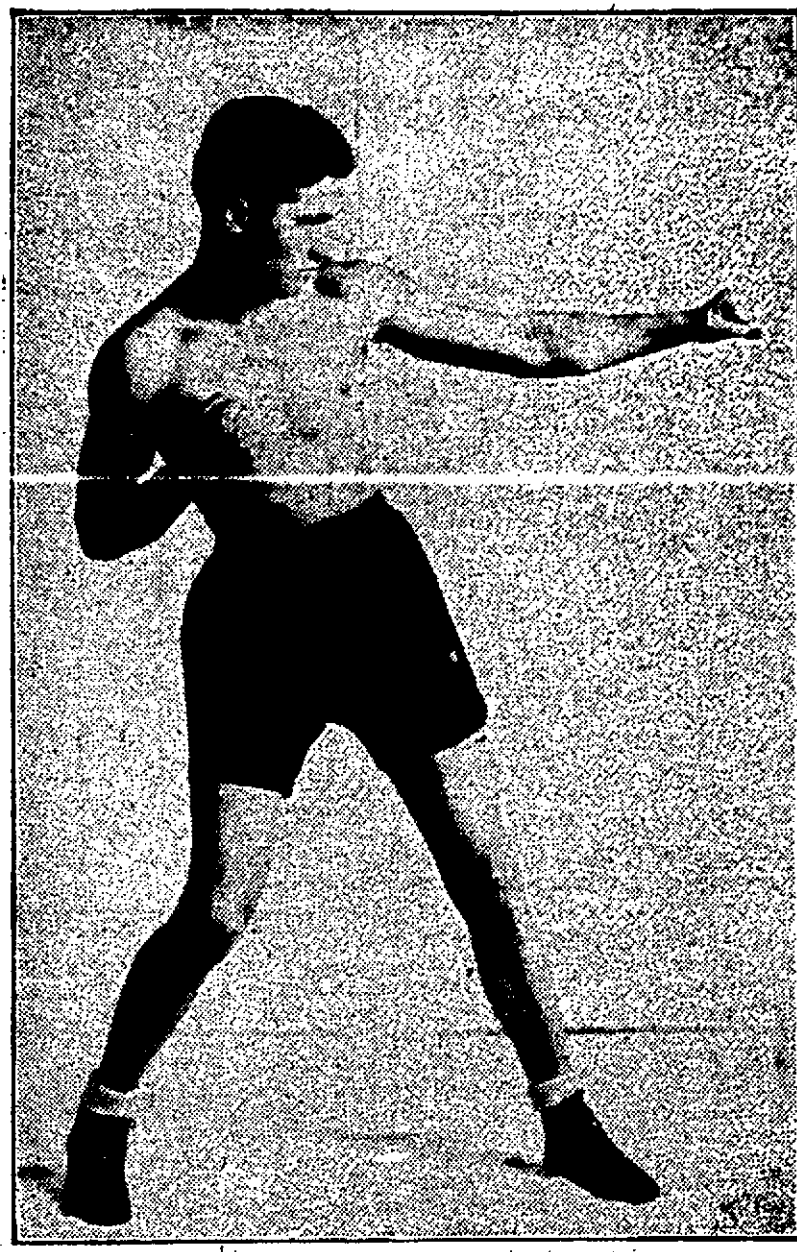

Last night they completed one of the greatest comebacks that even such a famed team of "money players" has ever made to win the title for the fifth time. Outmanned and often outplayed all through the final series, the habitants rose to the heights of hockey. They were the battered under dogs at the start of the series and were conceded hardly a chance of victory after Chicago had taken the lead by winning the first game in Montreal. But they won last Saturday's game to tie the series at two games each and scored a decisive victory in the final clash last night.

HOMERS HELP BADGER NINE BEAT KENTUCKY

Lexington, Ky.—(AP)—Home runs and heavy hitting on the part of the University of Wisconsin baseball team and errors on the part of the University of Kentucky nine gave the Badgers a 12 to 4 victory here yesterday.

Led by Schneider, who tallied two singles, the Wisconsin team collected 13 hits. Smilgoff and Winer also scored home runs.

Resumes Ring Battles

Winston "Windy" Thomas, clever New London boxer, will return to his ring battles Thursday night when he meets Augie Stubler, Sheboygan, in the feature bout of the evening's card. Stubler and Thomas have never fought before and they are natural rivals for honors in their class. Both are clever boxers and can land hard if given the opportunity.

Winston "Windy" Thomas of New London will return to the local ring tomorrow night after an absence of several months and will meet Augie Stubler of Sheboygan in the feature bout. The fight brings together two of the cleverest, fastest boxers ever tossed into a local ring.

Thomas' record hereabouts is well known. He started fighting around here about 13 months ago, became a favorite and closed last season with a great fight against Bennie Gold.

LAWRENCE GOLFERS TO HAVE 4 MATCHES

Viking Squad Competes in Duals With Carroll, Ripon, Beloit

Lawrence college upper classmen golfers are out with the driver and the mauls daily as they get into condition for the all campus golf tournament at the municipal golf course, Saturday, April 25. The squad is reported to number a likely looking bunch of Bobby Jones. Among the players are Jimmy McKenney, and Paul Hackbert, both well known among the junior golfers at Butte des Morts course.

Besides the all campus meet the Viking team will battle Carroll, Ripon and Beloit. The team also is entered in the second annual Big Four meet which will be held at Ripon this year.

Started by Lawrence college golfers last year with a tournament here, college golf has grown until the players now are forcing athletic directors to put the sport on the regular intercollegiate sports program.

The Lawrence schedule for this spring follows:

April 25—All campus at Municipal course.

May 2—Carroll here.

May 9—Ripon here.

May 16—Beloit here.

May 23—State meet at Ripon.

BOXING FANS ARE INTERESTED IN BAY FIGHT CARD FRIDAY

Harry Dublinski and Benny Duke Fight 10 Rounds in Windup Bout

GREEN BAY—Much local interest seems attached to the boxing club here and the first professional card to be presented by that organization Friday night.

Like many new organizations having a sort of "grand opening," the Green Bay Boxing association seems to have mortgaged a considerable portion of its original capital to provide the fans with a really metropolitan boxing card. The card has a great wind-up event, a semi-wind-up that should rate a packed house and two other bouts that should convince the new owners of the boxing club that it pays to provide boxing fans with quality shows. Many local sportsmen and followers of the ring game have expressed their intention of seeing the opening of the pro season at the Bay. The seats are all reserved. The show will take place in Columbus Auditorium and will begin promptly at 8:30 o'clock.

At that hour Joe Kublak of Milwaukee will begin to do things with Ernie Keith of Sheboygan. They are set for four rounds if nothing serious happens. Then for six rounds Johnny Saunders, as tough as they make them at Green Bay, will throw gloves in the general direction of Jack Rogerson of Chicago.

The veteran of more battles than he can recall, Joe Azzerella probably will be just as popular as ever when he slides through the ropes to engage in hostilities with Young Shaw of Oshkosh who is not to be rated as "pickins" for anybody these days.

Big Herb King who hits opponents hard early in the fight has a chance to try to do things with Marty Frank, Jewish heavyweight prospect from Milwaukee. Frank has often been suggested as a suitable match for Talt Littman who most cautiously seeks his men.

But after all this has flown, and 22 scheduled rounds of boxing gone the big show still remains to be put on and ten rounds more of real stuff is on the menu. The wind-up which matches Harry Dublinski with Benny Duke, Detroit, is one of the most expensive wind-ups the Bay promoters have ever put on.

Dublinski has punched and slugged his way up into the picture, and while he was doing this with boxers who really count, Benny Duke in the auto city was toppling over other boys who also had counted. Dublinski performed on New Years day before a $10,000 gate in Milwaukee and defeated Bruce Flowers after this same Flowers had twice defeated King Tut, Milwaukee idol.

Stubler Beat Bruno

The last victim of Stubler was none other than Tony Evans, the southpaw fighter from Milwaukee who is well known here. Stubler won the fight in a sizzling match and is in real condition for Thomas. Stubler is seriously considering making a bow with the pros.

Harold Cotter, the Kaukauna veteran who has yet to lose a nod this season shows against Cy Woolweber of Milwaukee in the semi-windup. Cotter's latest victim was Adolf Ebel which makes the Kaukauna boy a really tough customer. He has a fight with Frankie Knauer in Milwaukee next week and will have to show well here to maintain his prestige in the Cream City.

Very little is known about Woolweber, Charlie Higgins reports him as a fast, hard hitting youngster and if Charlie says so that ought to be enough.

Two heavyweights, Hank Schultz of Appleton and F. Weyenberg, Little Chute also are on the card. Weyenberg has been sailing along almost unblemished among the heavies but Schultz has a grudge to settle and he's making extensive plans for a win.

Champion Returns

Grigley Herman of Sheboygan and Leo Champeau of Green Bay, are on the fourth fight of the card. Herman is a rugged chap who holds a decision over Champeau. And as Appleton fans know how clever Champeau is they can expect a real slugfest match.

Another bout tomorrow that will be a fast, hard hitting brawl while it lasts will show the two Kaukauna boys, Nibs Knox and Louis Waters. They are reported to be the Mutt and Jeff of the amateur ring but because they are fighting for the honor of their respective sides of the river at Kaukauna they'll do or die in the attempt.

The other bout of the evening will feature a couple strangers. Lyle Drake of Waupaca, as hard a hitting boxer as has ever shown here and Johnnie Kaufman, Milwaukee Athletic club fighter, who comes highly recommended.

Fans also will get a chance to see some of the talent showing in the professional fight at Green Bay Friday night. Harry Dublinski who features in the windup bout and Benny Duke, his opponent, are expected to watch the "simon pures" perform and probably will be introduced from the ring.

The card tomorrow night starts at 8:30.

A. A. L. ALLEYS WILL PAY FIRST DIVIDENDS

Dividends will be paid share holders in the A.A. League for the first time in the club's existence, according to officers. The dividends will be announced at the annual meeting of the club, at 8 o'clock Friday evening, May 15.

The club was organized nine years ago and 400 persons subscribed to stock to help pay for the equipment placed in the A. A. L. alleys and clubrooms. The cost of the equipment was $9,000. No dividends have been paid since organization because profits from the alleys have been used to pay the difference in cost of equipment and money originally subscribed.

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon H. McIntyre

LUZERNE ATWELL BLUE, a 33-year-old ball player from Washington, D. C., is about to begin a new season in the big leagues playing with his third team. He played first base for the Tigers and for the Browns and several times his team came dangerously close to winning a league championship. But the prize always was just beyond his grasp. Now, with the White Sox, he is starting his 11th season in the American League with a team that ran seventh for two straight years.

The baseball fates have been harsh with Blue, and perhaps he could be excused if he decided in this waning day of his career that after all his parents were right in refusing him permission to play ball when as a kid he saw expressed in the big leaguers his highest ideals of sportsmanship and ambition.

He came up to Detroit to stick in 1921. He was then, and is now, a marvelous fielder. His easy grace around first base makes the job look like a cinch. When he came up he was a hustler and a scrapper. The team finished sixth that year, but was building swiftly. In the next year the Tigers clawed their way to third place. In 1923 the team fought into second.

I remember seeing him shortly after the season closed in 1923. He was full of hope for the following year. His talk was filled with pennant possibilities for 1924. But it was not to be. The Tigers slipped back a notch in 1924 when the Senators swept to a pennant. Again in 1925 the slipping was resumed, the Tigers finishing fourth.

In 1926 Blue seemed to slip a little, too. The fire of his enthusiasm dimmed. The Tigers that year finished sixth. In the following year the Tigers came back up to fourth, but Blue declined with the bat to a mere .260.

Then the Tigers packed him off to St. Louis where Dan Howley was making business hum for the Browns. The cheerful Howley helped him to renew his flagging ambition. He fought his way back with the Browns, helping the team to finish third in 1928. Things looked rosy for him again.

Then the Browns started to slip; too. In 1929 they wound up in fourth place, and last year Lu Blue was the "disgruntled" first baseman for a sixth place ball club. Now he goes to the White Sox, a team that Donie Bush is trying desperately to rescue from the cellar.

Last year Blue hit .235, and his "indifference" came under Bill Zille's regretful notice time and again.

What will this still young man, for whom the future once appeared so bright, do for the White Sox? Will he come back? Will he take new hope and keep up "the old fight," or will he drift bitterly back to the minors?

His day's work may hold the answer.

THOMPSON REGAINS WELTERWEIGHT TITLE FROM TOM FREEMAN

Defending Champion Victim of Technical K. O. in 12th
Round

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Young Jack Thompson, Oakland, Calif., Negro youth, is back on the throne today as welterweight champion of the world.

Thompson regained the title he lost to Tommy Freeman six months ago by scoring a technical knockout over the titleholder in the twelfth round of their scheduled 15-round encounter in Cleveland's public auditorium last night. Freeman, with his left eye swollen shut, was unable to respond when the bell clanged for the start of the twelfth round. The eye started to swell in the tenth and by the end of the eleventh it was tightly closed. He protested that he was unable to see and surrendered to the California Negro on the advice of a physician.

Technical Knockout

By his victory, Thompson exploded the popular belief that they never come back. His performance in winning back the title he lost takes rank with the achievements of the late Stanley Ketchel and Pete Herman, who won back their championships after losing them. Ketchel knocked out Billy Papke in 1908 in 12 rounds after Papke two months previously had stopped him in the eleventh round of their middleweight engagement. Herman retrieved his bantamweight title from Johnny Buff after losing it to him.

"Now, boy ain't that something," grinned Thompson as he sat in his dressing room after the fight.

"I got my championship back. I never should have lost it, but I'm sorry I won it the way I did. I would have liked to have knocked him out."

Crowd Is Small

For a championship fight, the battle was highly disappointing to a crowd of 9,000 spectators who paid $46,570 to witness it. It was dull and so uninteresting at times that the spectators yawned and yawned, demanding action. The contest lacked the thrills usually expected of a championship battle principally because Thompson fought cautiously and Freeman waged a boring in attack that was none too flashy. The crowd began to express its disapproval as early as the ninth round and kept yelling until the entirely unexpected finish.

Freeman was heart broken over his loss, but explained it was useless for him to continue as he could not see. In fairness to the beaten champion, he wanted to continue, but quit on the advice of his handlers.

Thompson failed to reveal the flashing performance that enabled him to knock out Joe Dundee and batter Jimmy McLarnin to defeat. He was perhaps too cautious because he wanted to save his damaged hand for a knockout smash if the opportunity had presented itself.

RAILROAD ROBOTS

London—A mechanical danger signal which, according to its inventors, will positively eliminate the danger of an engine running through a danger signal, is in use here. A third rail, erected between the two outside rails, extends above their level and presses a shoe hanging underneath the engine. Should the engineer fail to see a light signal due to foggy weather, the pressure of the third rail on the shoe will cause the brakes of the engine to function automatically.

CLARKE bowling team in the knights of Columbus league lost two games Monday night on Elk alleys and with only a week's kegling left on the schedule apparently clinched first honors. F. Felt rolled 205, 164, 233—602 the other night for the Clarke but his mates failed him and the Regis team topped the first game by one pin and the second by seven pins. The handicap was 111 to 0 in favor of the Regis team.

Loyola retained its hold on second place with a three game win over St. Thomas team. Balliet's big league kegling with scores of 224, 249, 186—653 turned the trick for the Loyola five.

Marquette team stayed in third place with a two and one win over the Notre Dame team. The Marquette five won the first game, dropped the second when Caltmacher rolled 236 for the N. D. and then took the third with a 233 by Haanen.

Campton, paced by J. Haug with 132, 191, 168—491, beat St. Francis team in two games when the losers had to resort to several averages for scores.

Holy Cross bowlers had an off evening and when Van Ryzin's 420 series was high the team dropped three straight games to St. North five.

Georgetown keggers had one of their big evenings and took two games from the St. Lawrence team. W. Fountain was high for the Georgetowners with a 378 series. R. Ebbens' 446 was high for the St. Lawrence team.

The other game in the league saw St. John team win two from the Creighton quintet. J. Bauer with 189, 186, 173—548 led the way for the winners. R. Gage's 176, 148, 198—523 was high for the Creighton five.

The annual Knights of Columbus bowling banquet will be held Monday evening, April 27 at the Northern hotel, according to announcement by league officials. Prizes and awards won by the legions in league bowling and at the state K. C. tournament will be announced.

Sports Question Box

Question—Who held the 1930 Young Men's Hebrew Association Basketball title? And who this year's title?

Answer—Philadelphia Y. M. H. A. team. The 1931 title won by the 82nd Street Y. M. H. A. team, New York City.

Question—At the end of the fifth inning the score was 1-0 in favor of Portland. In the first part of the sixth the visiting team scored one run, tying the score. Then it rained. The umpire called the game before the visiting team had completed its half of the sixth inning. Play could not be resumed. The umpire ruled that it was a 1-1 tie score.

Answer—The umpire was wrong. The game went back to even innings. This mistake is a very common one made by umpires who have had little experience.

Question—How do you account for the fact that foreigners are holding their own with the best boys we have in this country?

Answer—Native boxers take too much for granted and belittle foreigners. The latter are more conscientious and learn while natives are careless.

LIZON HEADS NEW LEAGUE OF SOFTBALL

Block and Verbatan Are Elected Secretary and Treasurer

Kaukauna—Stanley Lizon was elected president of the newly organized softball league at a meeting in the Knights of Columbus hall Tuesday evening. Francis Block was named secretary, and Jack Verbatan was elected treasurer.

The league was reduced to eight teams when several teams failed to post forfeit money. The Nightingale softball club wants to enter the league, and it was decided to admit the club if another team can be secured to increase the league to 10 teams. At the next meeting final action will be taken.

Teams which remain in the league are North Side Merchants, Reggie's Brewers, Knights of Columbus, Kalupa's Bakers, Mereness Transfers, Independents, Mueller Boots, and Andrews Oils. A schedule with these teams will be drawn up by Glen Miller, Henry Haupt and George Block, and the season probably will open April 27.

A meeting will be held Monday evening at the Mueller Boot Shop on Wisconsin-ave. Members will then determine whether the league will contain eight teams or ten teams, and will also discuss the schedule, which will be presented for approval.

Social Items

Kaukauna—Mrs. Otto Heindel was surprised at her home Monday evening on her birthday. Cars were played and honors were awarded to Mrs. Albert Ludtke, Miss Josephine Mertz, and Mrs. Hugo Kalfebe. Lunch was served.

The girls at Mooseheart are especially trained so that upon leaving the Child City, they go out as authorities on affairs of Women's Legion. The local chapter is especially interested in the work at this time as Miss Marie Harrant, a former Kaukauna girl, will be graduated from the high school there in June.

EXPECT CO-OP WILL TAKE OVER PLANTS

Bonduel, Mattoon, Wittenberg and Tigerton Factories Considered

BY W. F. WINSEY
Bonduel—It is expected by farmers here that the Badger Consolidated cooperative is to take charge of the plant of the Bonduel Creamery company this week and to invite local contract holders in this territory to begin delivery of milk to the plant. It is also expected that plants at Mattoon, Wittenberg, and Tigerton will be operated very soon by the cooperative.

Frank Stone, the manager of the Badger Consolidated cooperative, has been investigating the territory and equipment of the cooperative and was to attend a meeting of officers and other representatives of the cooperative in the court house, Shawano, Monday night. Mr. Stone wired the officers however, that it would be impossible for him to reach Shawano in time to attend the meeting.

Mr. Stone, before accepting his new post was the manager of the Twin Ports Dairy Cooperative, Superior, operating in two states.

RAIN NEEDED TO START FARM CROPS GROWING

BY W. F. WINSEY
Bonduel—The majority of farmers in this vicinity have finished one-half of their spring seeding and will complete the work this week. A few, however, have just started. While the temperature is just right, rain is needed to make the seed sprout and grow. One farmer who had nearly finished his seeding said that his seed might as well be in the bin as in the soil as the soil is so dry that no seed can sprout. The pasture, and winter grain fields are exhibiting coats of spring green and look very promising. A three-day soaking rain would make all crops grow.

WOULD RESTORE BIRTHPLACE OF TEST INVENTOR

Ask New York Legislature for Fund to Honor Stephen
Babcock

Madison—Bills are before the New York state legislature for appropriation of $10,000 to restore the birthplace of Stephen Moulton Babcock, $7, inventor of the Babcock milk test, on Babcock Hill, near Bridge-water, Oneida-co., New York as an agricultural memorial, according to the Rural New Yorker. The bills seek $10,000 or as much as may be needed to purchase the farm on which Professor Babcock was born and to restore the buildings on it and improve the grounds connected with it. Before Professor Babcock devised the now familiar test there was no satisfactory means of ascertaining the percentage of butter fat in milk. Its greatest value lies in the fact that it furnishes data for improving dairy stock by indicating which animals should be weeded out and which should be used for breeding. The test was perfected in 1890. The last line of the bulletin that announced the discovery reads: "The test is not patented."

Dr. Babcock was born in Babcock Hill Oct. 23, 1848. He graduated from Tufts College in 1868 and studied at Cornell University and the University of Göttingen, Germany. He returned to Cornell as instructor in chemistry and was chemist for the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station until he joined the faculty of the University of Wisconsin. In July, 1913, Dr. Babcock was made professor emeritus of agriculture at the University of Wisconsin. This relieved him of teaching and after that time he devoted himself entirely to laboratory work studying problems relating to physics and agriculture.

SHAWANO-CO FARMERS BOOST ALFALFA ACREAGE

BY W. F. WINSEY
Shawano—County Agent G. F. Baumeister estimates the increase in alfalfa acreage this spring in Shawano-co. of 50 per cent and says that a number of farmers are planning to plant soybeans for the first time. One of the incentives for changing is that red clover and timothy were light last year while alfalfa produced large yields despite the drought. Another incentive is the superiority of alfalfa and soybeans as a feed for dairy cattle and the large yields. The acreage of sweet clover for pasture will also be greatly increased according to the opinions of farmers. The soil testing work of the county agent the past year, his instructions about the best methods of raising legumes, and his comparison of feed values, were the principal factors that brought about the change.

Chapter 38
SIMON'S NEW PATIENTS

A FEW weeks later, Williams H. William heard a rumor in the underworld that the man known, among other names, as Doc English, Half-hung Simon, and Limmy Simon, had been illegally released from jail and had been seen at San Francisco in the company of one of his accomplices, Spider Schlitz, whose one-year term of imprisonment had expired at about the same time.

Hurrying round to Uncle's for further news—the matter to be mentioned most casually in the course of idliest conversation, of course—we learnt that the man Schlitz was staying openly at the Kearney House in San Francisco, while Simon was in hiding in Rio de Janeiro. Gunman Gryde was reported to be still in New York, and Chink Dorson still in Columbia Jail, where he had four years yet to serve.

After a council of war, we decided that we would once again separate, William going to San Francisco, his wife to New York, and I to Rio de Janeiro.

Should the gang assemble in one of these three places, we three would do the same, and lay our plans accordingly.

What I really wanted to do to them, and what I really hoped for, I did not know—beyond some kind of terrible punishment and revenge.

What I constantly visualized, and what constantly caused me to awake from sleep—with my hands clenching and flexed—was the thought of my hands upon the throat of each of these subhuman devils in turn. Dorson I would some day kill with my bare hands; from Simon, apparently their leader, I soon would choke the life; and, oh, slowly, slowly, would I, with iron fingers, strangle the man Gryde, that "Jimmy" whose name my daughter had shrieked in terror.

In Rio de Janeiro I lived my miserable life—sick at heart and ill of body, drifting from breakdown and probably madness, for I could find no trace of the man Simon, though I was able to learn his history thoroughly.

And then, again, I got renewed hope in a letter from Williams H. William, who "was certain that he was on the trail and would write again—great news."

But before hearing from him again I—clever fellow—was myself off on a new deal and a red-hot trail that led me right across the continent; thence to Seattle, and finally across the Pacific to Shanghai—there to run to earth, at last, the gang of white-slavers whom I had been pursuing, only to find that they were not our gang at all.

At the end of my tether, mental, moral and physical, I crawled back to Chicago.

Awaiting me in Uncle's care, was a packet of heavily sealed letters from Williams H. William. The latter had gone to England in pursuit of Simon, the English doctor whom he had discovered beyond any doubt, to be the leader of the gang whom we were tracing.

I learned with admiration the amazement that my wonderful William and his equally wonderful wife had gone to England and were actually living beneath the roof of the well-known and excellent conducted Nursing-Home that this man, "Half-hung Simon," a genuine M. D., whose real name was Theodore Charters, conducted with the help of none other than Dr. Manuel Machado, whose acquaintance he had made at Uncle's, while I was abroad.

Himself disguised, William had, in Chicago, shadowed Charters and Machado and also Charters' former confederate, Spider Schlitz, with whom Charters seemed to have quarreled.

The former pair, he had, as I have said, followed to England, and while himself a "patient" in Charters' Nursing-Home, had seen Spider Schlitz visit the house.

Promptly William had slipped out from the Nursing-Home, gone to the one and only railway station at the neighboring village, picked up Spider Schlitz, followed him on his return journey, and located a fine old country house in which he was living as a country gentleman. Having learned all that was necessary, he had returned as the penitent prodigal back from a drunken debauch, full of apologies and promises of reform—if the good Dr. Charters would take him back once more.

William wrote that both he and his wife felt that Charters, Machado and Gryde must have one or more confederates among their large staff, but had been unable to identify any of them. On the whole, they rather suspected the chief Nursing Sister, but only on the strength of her somewhat florid appearance.

In reply to a cable in our own cipher, William set me a plan of the house and grounds, and a detailed account of the daily routine of the Nursing-Home, and more particularly of Charters' habits and everything else which would possibly be of use to me for carrying out the scheme slowly developing in my mind.

In pursuance of this scheme, I sailed for England as soon as I had obtained a forged passport; taking with me as much money as I was likely to require, and making arrangements, through the invaluable Uncle, for yet further supplies, should they be necessary.

Arrived in England, Mr. John Wayne, a grim-faced, gray-haired, clean-shaven man who bore, perhaps, a slight resemblance to the long-dead millionaire, John Dacre Wayne Vanderleus St. Clair, visited the famous specialist, Sir Bernard Matthieson, who diagnosed pretty accurately a bad case of neurasthenia—with complications in the man who had carefully refrained from food and sleep for three days, and had taken certain heart-affecting and nerve-shattering concoctions well-known to malingering convicts.

Sir Bernard quite agreed with his new patient's suggestion that he should take a thorough rest-cure in one of the best country Nursing-Homes.

Mr. John Wayne also did a little business with a courteous and helpful Bank Manager and with a certain Solicitor not unknown to crooked American ladies and gentlemen in London, who are also in trouble, or who anticipate that they shortly will be in trouble.

All things methodically arranged with careful and cold-blooded deliberation, he set about the consummation of his first act of vengeance—the punishment of Spider Schlitz.

I will not call it murder, for this was, if ever, a case of "killing no murder"—an extermination of reptile vermin.

My plan, in outline, was to kill Spider Schlitz, and flee, instantly direct to the sanctuary of Charters' Nursing-Home.

Here, without making myself known to him, I should be safe, for, without knowing who I was, he should pretty promptly know that my discovery and arrest would precede his by but a few hours.

Of Williams H. William I had been the industrious apprentice, the indefatigable and not inapt pupil, and I do not think he would have been ashamed of my playing of my part at Witherby End while I was studying the life of the land and the habits of Squire Theophilus Webb—as Spider Schlitz was there known and admired.

Nor do I think that any of the Best Burglars would have been genuinely scornful of my reconnaissance of Squire Webb's grounds and mansion.

What I needed was to make my silent entry into the house and, unseen, wait for me but come face to face with him, unheard, and I would undertake that he too would be unheard—that he would die without a word, a sound, my hands upon his throat.

"My strength is as the strength of ten because my heart is pure."

Faith! My strength should be as the strength of a hundred because my heart was a hell seething hate and vengeance.

I had been about a fortnight or so in Witherby End when I suddenly got one of the shocks of a lifetime not wholly devoid of incident and these moments.

(Copyright, 1931, by Fredrick A. Stokes Co.)

Vengeance treads two paths to-morrow, and Wayne, halting in his own, sees the other lead to a fatal end.

Rembrandt, the great Dutch painter, died a bankrupt, Franz Hals, the great artist, continually in debt, lived at the end on parish relief.

BEARS HAMMER STEEL ISSUES TO LOW LEVELS

Wall Street Unimpressed by Demonstration—Share
Prices Dull

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Editor
New York.—(AP)—Bears succeeded in pushing U. S. Steel down to a new low for the 1929-31 bear movement today, but were surprised by the demonstration of Wall Street unimpressed by their demonstration.

Share prices continued to ooze slowly downhill, but with no exciting public following in the market, the new low for this traditional market leader failed to cause any extensive unsettlement. Trading held to a slow, sluggish pace. Most of it seemed to originate with professional operators.

U. S. Steel declined more than two points, getting slightly under last December's bottom price of 1931, but it quickly made a partial recovery. Vanadium, a pool favorite last year, broke about 5 points to a new low on omission of the dividend, getting down nearly 30 points under its 1930 high of 1431.

Several issues sold off 2 or 3 points, including American Can, American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Consolidated Gas, North American, Eastman, Dupont, New York Central, Union Pacific, Frisco, Case, Union Carbide, Lackawanna, and Westinghouse Electric. New York Central touched a new low since 1924.

The market reacted extremely dull around midday, and recovered a point or so from the bottom, but the recovery was not well maintained. While the decline was largely impelled by bearish activity, the weekly steel trade reviews gave the bears a good argument to support their cause, and the weekly report of electrical power consumption was less favorable than those of the past few weeks.

"Iron Age" placed raw steel output at 51 per cent of capacity, the third successive drop of 2 points. While the decline from the year's peak of 57 per cent reached in late March has been a normal seasonal development, there had been some hope that the spring peak might be reached later than usual this year, and that the current decline was only temporary, but this hope seems to be on the wane.

"American Metal Market" commented that "the real feature in steel may be called its failure to improve further since the middle of March, rather than its decline, which is slight, and no likely to be important."

The report of electrical power consumption for the week ended April 11 showed a drop of 3.1 per cent over a year ago, the least favorable comparison since the week ended March 14. The showing is still considerably better than that of the early weeks of the year.

The decline in freight car loadings as reported for the week ended April 4 of 11,568 cars was interpreted over bearishness on first glance. As a matter of fact, the decline was less than might be expected in the week of April Friday, and was largely accounted for by a smaller movement of coal.

The weekly petroleum statistics, however, were discouraging, showing further substantial gains in crude output and gasoline stocks on hand. There is talk of a further cut in mid-continent crude prices.

DEMAND FOR SWINE BOOSTS HOG PRICES

Traders Flock to Livestock
Market—Cattle Market
Shows Dullness

Chicago.—(AP)—A temporary improvement in demand for pork bolstered the hog market and brought buyers into the market early today. Packers received only 2,000 hogs on direct billing out of the fresh run of 14,000 and were obliged to come into the open market. Eastern demand was not broad. Small butchers brought 170-200 lb. hogs at $7.75 to $7.80 on a slightly stronger basis than the average on Tuesday.

Fresh arrivals of 8,000 cattle were supplemented by many carried over unsold from Monday. Distribution of Monday's surplus over the week, easing the stock of the market. On a couple of cars of cattle from Milwaukee were consigned direct to killers. Quality was fairly good, receipts running largely to steers. About 3,000 calves came in and demand for them was urgent enough to hold prices steady.

Bullishness was apparent in the opening sheep trade, though little stuff changed hands within the first rounds. Packers were not direct to local and local supplies of 10,000 were smallest in the three leading markets.

WHEAT PRICES ESTABLISH NEW HIGH RECORDS

Advance Stimulated by Reports of Slim Buying in Europe

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor
Chicago.—(AP)—Stimulated by indications that European demand had reached its peak in hand-to-hand buying, wheat today suddenly established a new high-price record for the season. Trans-Atlantic home-grown becoming exhausted, and new crop breadstuff supplies were reported as prospects in European continental countries unsatisfactory. Selling of corn against purchases of wheat had a bearish effect on corn.

Wheat advances took place in the face of securities weakness, including United States Steel at a new low for 1930 and 1931. Estimates, however, that more than 2,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been taken overnight for Trans-Atlantic shipment served at least temporarily any fractional setbacks from wheat advances. Tending also to uphold wheat price gains were Nebraska receipts that had been expected throughout the southeast quarter of the state.

Predictions that German import restrictions on wheat would be modified helped to encourage wheat bulls. There were also advices of active oriental demand for Australian wheat. Sharp upturns in Argentine quotations were a further source of inspiration to buyers.

Wheat and oats sympathized with wheat strength. Provisions were easy in the absence of any aggressive buying.

$170,000 TO BE SPEND HERE BY PHONE COMPANY

Expenditure Is Part of Large Appropriation for Service Improvement

Approximately $170,000 will be spent here in 1931 to increase facilities of the Wisconsin Telephone Co., according to H. M. Fellows, manager. The expenditure represents part of the total appropriation of $10,000,000 for extensions, additions and betterments to the telephone system throughout the state this year, Mr. Fellows stated.

In anticipation of a continued expansion of the telephone business and increased use of local and long distance service, the company's construction program provides for an expenditure of $88,000 for additional local and long distance central office equipment.

An appropriation of $52,000 for additions to outside plant includes aerial and underground cable construction in addition to installation of underground conduit to provide facilities for the future growth of the exchange. Other additions to plant and installation of subscribers' telephone stations involve an expenditure of $29,000.

Increase in Phones
An increase of 351 subscribers, telephones was made in Appleton during 1930. The Appleton exchange now serves 3,566 telephones. Continued growth in the number of telephones served is expected, according to Mr. Fellows.

Among the telephonic accomplishments here in 1930 were the placing in service of the long distance telephone cable connecting Milwaukee with Appleton and intermediate points; start of construction of a long distance cable between Appleton and Stevens Point; erection of a new long distance central office building directly east of and adjacent to the present central office building on W. Washington-st. and installation of modern equipment.

Central office switchboard operators completed for Appleton telephone subscribers during 1930, 15,754,429 telephone calls and 213,377 to distant points. Customers of the Wisconsin Telephone Co. throughout the state in 1930 made approximately 577,100,000 local telephone calls. More than 13,600,000 long distance calls were completed.

MORE FIREMEN NOT SOUGHT IN APPLETON

John Roach, secretary of the fire and police commission, announced this morning that the commission is not seeking applicants for positions on the fire department. Ever since the publication of the National Board of Fire Underwriters report,

Mr. Roach says, members of the commission have been besieged with applications, when as a matter of fact, no action has been taken to authorize the employment of more men.

APPLETON CAUSES 50 PER CENT OF RIVER POLLUTION

Report Says Most Waste in River Is from Industrial Source

The city of Appleton is responsible for 50 per cent of the pollution of the Fox river, according to reports made to Green Bay last week by the Jerry Donohue Engineering company of Sheboygan in collaboration with Alvord, Burdick and Howson, Chicago. The report is part of the firm's work on plans for a sewage disposal system for Green Bay.

The report points out that the pollution of the Fox river valley, from a pollution standpoint, is $32,000. This figure is based on the volume of organic waste dumped into the river. Only 11 per cent of this waste is domestic, however, representing the actual population of 32,000. The balance of the waste is from industrial sources. Of this amount 50 per cent results at Appleton, 25 per cent at Green Bay and the balance is from other cities on the river.

Green Bay officials are discussing the possibility of joining with De Pere and the towns of Allouez and Preble in building a disposal system which would serve all four communities jointly. Mayor John V. Diener of Green Bay plans to call officials of the four districts together soon to discuss the proposal. A similar joint district has been proposed for Neenah, Menasha, Appleton, Little Chute, Kimberly, Combined Locks and Kaukauna.
